COLORED MAN IN HOSPITAL WITH BULLET IN SIDE

Henry Johnson, 25, Shot During Quarrel Over Affections of Woman

CONDITION NOT SERIOUS

Richard McKinney, 28, Facing Charge of Shooting with Intent To Kill

Henry Johnson, 25, of 247 Senate-st, a car washer employed at the Chevrolet garage on S. Main-st, is in the city hospital with a bullet in his side, and Richard McKinney, 28, of 184 Senate-st, is held at the city prison facing a charge of shooting with intent to kill, as the result of an affray about 7 o'clock Tuesday night that is said to have been caused by rivalry between the two men over the affections of Mrs. Ruth Wilson, 22. Mrs. Wilson is in the county jail, being held as a material witness in the case. All three are colored and residents of the West Side negro settlement, where the shooting occurred.

Will Recover

Johnson will recover, reports from the hospital state, and an effort to remove the bullet will probably be made today.

Enmity between McKinney and Johnson has existed for several weeks over their attentions to Mrs. Wilson, according to testimony of acquaintances living in the colored settlement, and culminated early Tuesday night when the two men met in a restaurant located in the same building with the LaVette pool-room.

McKinney approached Johnson and is said to have demanded that the latter retract the charge that McKinney had made disparaging remarks about Mrs. Wilson. Johnson refused to become engaged in an argument and left the restaurant, going to the pool-room. McKinney followed, witnesses state, and entering the pool-room, whipped out a 38-caliber Colt revolver and opened fire on his alleged enemy. A scene of wild panic ensued in the La-

MINISTER, SWEETHEART WERE TRAILED, CLAIM

Contractor Reveals New Angle to Reporters in Hall-Mills Murder

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 27—Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer sweetheart, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were trailed by two men, one tall and the other short, for a month before they were murdered on the deserted Phillips farm, it was revealed today by William O'Rourke, a contractor.

O'Rourke had appeared as a minor witness before, but never had he told the story which he divulged to reporters today.

"The first time I saw the two men following Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills was about a month before they were killed," he said. "I was sitting in my car near De Russy's Lane with my wife when we saw Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills walk by. Behind them at a distance of perhaps 100 feet the two men were following. One was unusually tall, the other short.

"About a week later, the same thing happened. I planned to tell Dr. Hall privately, but I never got around to it."

O'Rourke said he was in the same place also on the night of the murders and saw the couple, but this time he did not see anyone following them. Active preparations for the trial of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her two brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, for the murder of Mrs. Mills, were started today by Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson. The trial opens here next Wednesday.

About 125 witnesses will be in court on the first day, Inspector John J. Underwood announced.

Whether the body of Mrs. Mills will be exhumed for an autopsy had not been determined today, although authority was obtained from Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker last week for the exhumation.

STRICKEN WHILE PERFORMING HIS FEATS OF MAGIC

Harry Houdini

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27—Harry Houdini, magician, who is in Grace Hospital suffering from peritonitis from an operation for acute appendicitis, was reported improved in a bulletin issued today by attending physicians. "Mr. Houdini rested quite well last night. His condition is good at present. Temperature 100; pulse 100; respiration 30," the bulletin said. Houdini was stricken here Sunday afternoon but insisted on going ahead with his performance.

ARMENIAN EARTHQUAKE DAMAGE $100,000,000

Official Estimate of Dead Is 365, While 8,000 Persons Are Homeless

Moscow, Oct. 27—After four days and nights uninterrupted rescue work, American Near East Relief workers at Leninkan were still toiling today to save victims of the recent Armenian earthquakes.

Official reports reveal that the catastrophe was worse than the first estimates and it is now stated that there are 365 identified dead and 8,000 homeless and the damage amounts to more than $100,000,000.

The successive earthquakes over a period of four hours drove many into a frenzy of fear that has resulted in madness.

Twenty persons are reported to have died of heart failure.

ENTIRE POPULATION SLEEPING IN FIELDS

New York, Oct. 27—The entire population of Leninkan is sleeping in the fields and relief measures are urgently necessary in order to prevent widespread suffering in earthquake stricken Armenia, according to a cable received by the Near East Relief from Dr. Joseph Beach, director general of the Near East Relief in Armenia. Winter weather and snow may be expected early in November, with bitter cold by December, Dr. Beach reports, and unless the Armenian refugees are housed there will be many deaths from exposure.

The walled city of Kars is reported to have suffered heavy damage and the rural districts continue to report casualties in increasing numbers.

$1,003.13 Turned in by City School Children This Week, Report Shows

With today's deposit of $1,003.13, total school savings exceeded the $15,000 mark, reaching $15,580.90. Bank deposits this week showed an increase of $190.36 over last week's although in Harding High School there was a decrease of $38.90 from last week. In the grade schools the increase this week was $229.26.

The Harding High School deposit this week was $193.85 and the grade school $800.28.

School bank deposits last week showed a decrease of $182.16 from the week before however Harding High School's was $21.35 more than the week before.

YOUTH IS NEAR DEATH FOLLOWING DISPUTE

Toledo, Oct. 27—Herbert Schotts, 20, of Youngstown, is at the point of death in a hospital here today as the result of a bullet wound in his back.

Schotts, a member of the crew of a tugboat, was said by police to have been discharged by Captain J. H. Pringle, pilot of the boat, whereupon a dispute arose.

Pringle is being held by police, but the case probably will go into federal jurisdiction as the tug was moored to a vessel.

BALANESCU CASE GOING TO COURT OF APPEALS

Cleveland, Oct. 27—Attorneys for Ernst "Frenchy" Balanescu, convicted of manslaughter here last week in connection with the death of Dorothy Kirk, to whom he is alleged to have administered "love pills," are preparing to carry the case to the Appellate Court.

Balanescu late yesterday lost his fight for a new trial when the motion by his counsel was overruled.

GOVERNMENT ASKS 100 ARMORED CABS

Washington, Oct. 27 — In connection with its war against mail bandits, the Postoffice Department today called for bids for the construction of 100 armored cabs for installation on mail trucks.

The bids will be opened Nov. 10. Contracts will call for 25 additional cabs, if needed.

The cars will be constructed of steel and bullet-protected glass and will be so designed as will enable guards to fire from them at any angle.

RED CROSS HEAD SAYS CHAPTER FAVORS CHEST

Organization Ready To Support Move for Centralized Drive

Marion Chapter of the Red Cross is heartily in favor of the movement to establish a Community Chest in Marion and stands ready to support a campaign for raising the fund whenever the plans take definite form, Guy H. Hulse, county chairman of the Red Cross, stated today.

The first move this year in behalf of a Community Chest was taken by the Red Cross about two months ago, when a committee was appointed to place the proposal before the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Hulse says. Members of this committee were Mrs. H. K. Henderson, representing the Marion Federation of Women's Clubs A. C. Edmondson and C. C. Fisher.

"The Red Cross is not likely to join in any preliminary consideration of a Community Chest plan until assured that there are actual intentions of starting a campaign for funds," the County Chairman said. He believes that the matter should be taken up by the Chamber of Commerce with a view to mapping out a definite program.

Recently the Chamber of Commerce sent letters to six representative welfare and charity organizations, including the Red Cross, requesting an expression of their views on the Community Chest, and also asking for detailed statements of their receipts and expenditures for the last three years.

Takes Credit

"In view of the fact that the Red Cross really started the present Community Chest movement by requesting action by the Chamber of Commerce, and

POMERENE, COOPER AND WILLIS MAKING TALKS

Foremost Republican Candidates Plan Ten-Stop Tour of Montgomery County

Columbus, Oct. 27—With Cooper and Willis invading the northern part of the state today on speaking tours, Atlee Pomerene, seeking the United States senatorship on the Democratic slate, invaded Cooper's home district, Cincinnati, and was scheduled to address rallies this afternoon and tonight.

Cooper appeared at Ashtabula this morning after a sweep across the state and tonight will speak at Lakewood. Willis' itinerary called for appearances at both Fostoria and Tiffin tonight.

Former Congressman J. Adam Bede, of Minnesota, appears at Celina tonight on behalf of the Republican candidates, while Col. Ralph Cole, of Findlay, will be at Greenfield.

PLAN TEN-STOP TOUR OF COUNTY

Dayton, Oct. 27 — The windup of Montgomery County's fall election campaign is to be a high pressure affair tomorrow, with United States Senator Frank B. Willis, Myers Y. Cooper, Republican nominee for governor; Roy G. Fitzgerald, congressman, running for re-election, and Jess Haines, star batteryman of the St. Louis Cardinals, speaking on a 10-stop tour of the county.

After a tour of the principal towns of the county, where all three candidates will address crowds of voters during the day, an evening rally will be held in Memorial Hall in Dayton tomorrow night.

DEMOCRATS WELCOME ATLEE POMERENE

Middletown, Oct. 27—Among those joining Middletown citizens in welcoming former United States Senator Atlee Pomerene at dinner meeting here today will be former Governor James M. Cox, Dr. T. A. McCann, congressional candidate; J. Spring McMahon and Judge Shouppe, of Dayton, Judge Clarence Murphy and Warren Gard, of Hamilton, Ohio.

More than 200 guests will hear Pomerene at the Manchester Hotel this afternoon.

FATE OF MRS. WEBSTER SOON RESTS WITH JURY

Cadiz, Oct. 27—The fate of Mrs. Isabelle Webster, 36, of Columbus, on trial for second degree murder for the fatal shooting of her husband, Harry, a dry agent, will rest with the jury of 12 men by tonight.

Mrs. Webster took the stand in her own defense today and told the jury that the shooting was accidental. She claimed that her husband said he "would like to shoot us all" and that she then handed him a gun which accidentally discharged, the bullet hitting him in the back of the neck. He died instantly.

McDermott Wants Immunity If He Turns State's Evidence, Is Claim

Canton, Oct. 27—Veiling in deep secrecy all that transpired during the two and one-half hours conference today between Pat McDermott, "key figure" in the mystery surrounding the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, Ora Slater, Ohio detective and Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, the latter this afternoon told International News Service that he and Slater had decided upon a policy of "holding back all that transpired at the conference until a propitious moment," but that both of them "were extremely pleased with the trend taken at the session."

"I would not be violating any confidence in saying that the situation is resolving itself into the manner desired by us," McClintock said, "and we sincerely hope that within a few days we will have news of real importance to impart to the people of Ohio."

Emergency Conference

That developments are beginning to shape into the desired form can be readily visualized through McClintock's statement that no emergency confer-

Superlative importance is attached by Slater and McClintock to the address of the hideaway, for it is through the identity of person or persons who "paid the rent for the apartment" that the investigators hope to learn the identity and motives of the real person or group of persons back of the murder.

TWELFTH JUROR WILL BE SELECTED TODAY

Another Special Venire of Fifty To Report to Judge Wright at Lebanon

Lebanon, Oct. 27—Another special venire of 50 jurors reported to Judge Wright this morning in the trial of Charles E. "Ted" Garrison, 23, Franklin, Ohio, charged jointly with his brother, Ernest, with the murder of Night Policeman James A. Benge at Franklin on the night of March 21.

The original venire of 75 jurors was exhausted with only 11 jurors being selected for the trial.

It was expected that the twelfth juror would be selected today and presentation of evidence in the case would proceed.

TWO CHILDREN DIE WHEN FLAMES DESTROY HOME

Mother and Two Other Tots Badly Burned at Elwood, Ind.

Elwood, Ind., Oct. 27—Two children were burned to death, their mother was badly burned and two other children received serious burns when fire destroyed the Richard Leakey home here today.

The dead were: Richard Leakey, 7 months old; Jean Leakey, 2 years old.

Mrs. Leakey was badly burned in rescuing Carolyn, 3, and Mary Margaret, four.

TRUNK CONTAINING GEMS WORTH $35,000 STOLEN

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 27—A trunk containing between $35,000 and $50,000 worth of jewelry was stolen from the Hotel Syracuse last night, according to reports to the police today.

The trunk, owned by V. S. Chapman, of Newark, N. J., a jewelry salesman, was taken from the railroad station by a tax driver and placed on the sidewalk, Chapman said. When a porter went for the trunk, a few minutes later, it had disappeared.

Toledo On Verge of Hysteria As Mutilated Body of Another Slain Woman Is Discovered By Husband

DEPUTY THINKS MANIAC KILLED BEULAH PURVIS

Ohio River Mystery Continues To Baffle Cincinnati Authorities After Week

BLOODHOUNDS FAIL

Officer To Communicate with Toledoans Today; Death Circumstances Same

Cincinnati, Oct. 27—That the same degenerate maniac who clubbed, stripped and stabbed 19-year-old Beulah Purvis and threw her broken body into the Big Miami River last week, is responsible for the Toledo "clubber" outrages, was the belief expressed here today by August Beckman, deputy sheriff, investigating the slaying here that has baffled investigators for more than a week.

The brutal murders of Miss Lilly Croy, 26, and Mrs. George W. Alden, in Toledo, yesterday and last night, revealed that the same tactics were used as were employed in the Purvis murder.

"Find the Clubber"

"Find that Toledo clubber and you will undoubtedly solve the murder of little Beulah Purvis," Deputy Beckman declared when informed this morning of the latest activities of the Toledo "clubber."

The Purvis girl was thought to have been killed near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad—not far from Cleves, Ohio. Beckman pointed out that the "clubber" could then have hopped a freight, directly into Toledo—or could have taken a passenger train at any one of the many little villages near the scene of the crime.

Slain by Fiend

Roused into new action by the similarity of the crimes in the two cities, Beckman indicated that he might communicate with Toledo authorities today, giving them whatever data he had gathered on the Purvis case.

Beulah Purvis was murdered by a fiend—Beckman was certain of that. Her head had been crushed by some heavy club or other instrument; her skull fractured, jaw broken, her body bruised and cut from heavy blows, and she was also stabbed in the breast.

Bloodhounds, used yesterday in an effort to track the slayer from a pool of dried blood along the Baltimore & Ohio were of no success as the trail was too old, it was stated.

REPRISALS ARE FEARED IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

Tenseness Pervades Countryside Following Two Killings in Gang Feud

Harrisburg, Ill., Oct. 27—Fearful that threatened reprisals by the Birger gang against the Shelton gang in the two latest killings laid to the feud would mean open warfare, a tenseness prevailed this section of southern Illinois today.

The situation which had been brewing for many weeks, reached a climax following the finding of the body of Ward Jones, right hand man of Charles Birger in a creek near Equality. Jones was the second member of the gang to be found riddled with bullets. Yesterday the body of William B. "Highpocket" McQuay was found crumpled up in a small coupe near Herrin, in Williamson County. Birger, leader of one of the warring factions, after viewing Jones' body, is said to have declared:

"The Shelton crowd killed those boys and I'm not going to sleep until I even things up."

Machine guns, sawed off shotguns, rifles and revolvers have been brought into play in recent weeks in killings in Saline and Williamson Counties. Authorities said both gangs are heavily armed and they re fearful of the consequences.

GERMANS EXCITED OVER ATTITUDE OF AMERICA

Berlin, Oct. 27—The German press was greatly excited today over London and Paris reports that the United States government is "amazed and irritated" over the proposed formation of a Franco-German steel combine.

These reports declare that the United States Department of State has warned the German ambassador, Baron Von Maltzan in sharp terms against Herr Stresemann venturing upon any European policy which displeases the United States.

QUEEN OBSERVES LAW, DRINKS ONLY SODAS

But, Royal Barber Closes Up Bar When Party Reaches Toronto

ABOARD Queen Marie's special train at Montreal, Oct. 27—Queen Marie of Roumania arrived in a country today where she may be wined as well as dined in public with perfect propriety.

In Montreal the government guides the consumption of alcohol beverages merely by controlling its sale. Her majesty comes from a land where sipping the fermented liquid of the grape is a national habit and not an illegality.

While in prohibition America, Queen Marie was punctilious in observing the law of the nation entertaining her, her attaches declare. Evidence contributing to uphold this statement is the presence of a model American soda fountain aboard the royal train.

Barber Soda "Jerker"

Clarence McCullough, the royal barber, operates this soft drink bar. The great American national delicacy, the well known ice cream soda is the royal family's favorite request.

"Her majesty frequently asks for seconds," McCullough asserted proudly. "She is a fine lady. Every time she sees me, she says good morning or good afternoon."

When the queen's special drew into Montreal, McCullough took a hand up his soda fountain. There are also others on the train serving the queen who swear by her majesty.

"I don't know anything about queens, but she's a lady," said Samuel Williams, who carries the royal baggage lightly. On less distinguished caravans, they call Samuel a porter.

"The least thing I do for her majesty, the princess or the prince, they smile and say: 'Thank you so much,'" said Samuel.

SESQUI-CENENNIAL CAN NOT OPEN ON SUNDAYS

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 27—Exceptions filed by the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition Association to the Dauphin County court opinion relative to the illegality of Sunday operation of the Sesqui-Centennial at Philadelphia were denied today by the court.

The court's decision decrees that judgment of ouster be entered in accordance with the original opinion, of Sept. 16, and that the exhibition association "be ousted from any right, privilege or authority to open hold or conduct the exposition on the Lord's Day."

Costs of proceedings were ordered to be paid by the association.

PONZI LOSES APPEAL TO AVOID EXTRADITION

Austin, Texas, Oct. 27 — Charles Ponzi, financial wizard, today lost his appeal to avoid extradition to Massachusetts.

The court of Criminal Appeals overruled the motion made by Ponzi's attorneys and sustained Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's order for Ponzi to be extradited to Massachusetts, where Ponzi is under sentence of from seven to nine years for alleged illegal operations.

AMBASSADOR WASHBURN HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

Aged Father in Critical Condition as Result of Near Suffocation

Falmouth, Mass., Oct. 27—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the home of Albert H. Washburn, ambassador to Austria, today causing damage estimated at $200,000.

Ambassador Washburn's 82-year-old father is in a critical condition from near suffocation by smoke. He was carried through the smoke-filled halls of the mansion by Charles B. Fisher, caretaker.

Roused from their beds by the cries of the caretaker and other employes, Ambassador Washburn and other occupants of the home narrowly escaped being trapped. Mrs. Washburn and her son were not at home.

A wardrobe valued at $25,000 which Mrs. Washburn had planned to take to Austria when she and her husband sailed for Europe on Nov. 11 was completely destroyed. Not a piece of the home furnishings were saved.

Police and fire officials were conducting an investigation on the theory that the fire was of incendiary origin.

BANK ROBBERY HALTED BY HEROISM OF GIRL

Bookkeeper Calmly Walks to Burglar Alarm as Bandits Cover Clerks

Covington, Ky., Oct. 27—Miss Lorraine Zang, bookkeeper for the Security Bank & Trust Co., here, was back at her desk today modestly acknowledging tributes to her bravery that prevented four armed bandits from robbing the bank yesterday.

While the bandits were covering other employes, Miss Zang walked over to an alarm button and calmly stepped upon it, much to the dismay of the robbers, who immediately fled.

"I wasn't scared a bit," she said today. "I really thought it was all a joke being played upon me."

SUSPECT HELD AFTER JANITOR FINDS IRON BAR

Weapon, Resembling Coupling Pin, Located in Ash Heap; Covered with Hair, Blood

WOMAN SHOT, ATTACKED

Police Also Get Another Clew on Learning of Taxicab Passenger

Toledo, Oct. 27—Following discovery of an iron bar, covered with human hair and blood in an ash heap near the scene where Miss Lily Croy, 26, was killed by the clubber yesterday, police today took into custody a man said to be suffering from mental disease.

He was found living a block from the scene of the clubber's activities.

A negro janitor, while dumping refuse, saw the bar protruding from the ash heap. He took it to Dr. C. L. McKibbin, who lives nearby. The latter declared the blood and hair to be that of a human.

Resembles Coupling Pin

The bar is about a foot long and weighs approximately eight pounds. It resembles the coupling pin used to attach trailers to automobiles.

Police received another clew today when they learned that a taxicab driver had picked up a passenger near the area where the clubber has committed his crimes, early yesterday morning. When this passenger was discharged at a hotel, another driver noticed that the stranger's coat and hands were smeared with blood.

Discovery of another mysteriously murdered woman has brought this city to the verge of hysteria and caused extreme methods to be adopted in the hunt for the "clubber" to whom is accredited the atrocious murders of the four other women and criminal attacks upon at least five others.

Mrs. Mary Alden, 47, is the latest victim in the series of shocking crimes. Her body, with the night clothes torn to shreds and with three bullets in the breast, was found by her husband, George W. Alden, when he returned from work late last night.

She had been assaulted after a terrific encounter.

No Evidence Uncovered

The death of Mrs. Alden differed from that of the four unfortunate others who were clubbed to death and their bodies frightfully mutilated, ostensibly by a degenerate. In each of the previous eight assault a club was employed by the fiend.

Not a fragment of evidence has been uncovered in the death yesterday of Lilly Croy, 26, beautiful school teacher, whose mutilated body was found in the shadow of a school after the clubber had swooped upon her from a darkened ambush.

In each instance, except the slaying of Mrs. Alden, the brute's methods have been the same. He has descended so swiftly that his victims had no chance to see him. He struck from behind and

Freight Losses for First Six Months of This Year Very Light Despite Volume

Reduction Continues Ever Since 1920 on All Railroads Operating Through Marion; Agents Meet Monthly To Iron Out Problems

Although the railroads during the first six months this year handled the greatest freight traffic on record for any corresponding period, claims resulting from loss and damage to freight shipments while in transit were the smallest for that period ever reported, according to reports for the first half of 1926 filed by the carriers with the Freight Claim Division of the American Railway Association.

A continuous reduction ever since 1920 in loss and damage to freight has been reported each year by railroads operating through Marion. This reduction has been brought about not only by the active cooperation of the shippers and receivers of freight but also by the cooperation and care of the railroad employes.

Meetings Scheduled

Meetings of freight claim committees are held monthly in local offices and additional plans for the safe transportation of freight are discussed by employers and employes.

Only a few days ago the claim committee of the Toledo Division of the Hocking Valley met in the office of Supervisor F. A. Sparks here while local Big Four officials and employes at the freight house also held their regular meeting about a week ago.

The effect of the increased efficiency in the operation of the railroads this year is also reflected in the reduction that has taken place in the amount of loss and damage claims.

Claims resulting from loss and damage to freight paid by railroads in 1925 amounted to $38,772,667 which was the lowest for any year on record in proportion to the amount of freight carried.

Special in Spencerville

The Erie "Better Bull Special" with its fine exhibit of registered dairy bulls is in Spencerville today.

The train left Marion Sunday on a two weeks' tour through cities of Western Ohio, stopping first at Wren and spending yesterday at Ohio City. Thursday the special will steam into Alger.

A group of Erie agricultural men, representatives of the dairy department of Ohio State University, and field secretaries of the various breed associations of Ohio accompany the train.

Early Friday morning the special will pass through Marion over the Erie in its run to Galion where it is scheduled to show Friday, beginning at 9:30 a. m. It will return to Marion for exhibition Saturday.

Large Shipment

One of the largest shipments of Maytag washing machines ever made at one time was carried through Marion recently when a "Maytag Special," composed of 25 cars of washing machines, made a run over the Erie from the Maytag factories in the West to dealers in the eastern cities.

Get Pay Today

Hocking Valley employes today received their pay for the first half of October.

Off Duty

A number of Hocking Valley men were off duty yesterday in attendance at the funeral of L. L. Jones, yard conductor, who died Sunday morning at his home in this city.

Taking Inventory

Supervisor F. A. Sparks of the Toledo Division of the Hocking Valley and John Zuck, clerk in his office, were still busy today, taking an inventory of the unapplied materials in the various cities and villages along this section.

The inventory is made annually and will be completed within a week.

SHEIKS DISCARD ROBES

No longer do the students in the prominent school of Egypt all wear the traditional sheik's robes. After a small but significant civil war, they discarded the flowing robes for the modern dress. The minister of education favored the robes and threatened a lockout of students but the students entered class rooms by wearing their robes over their modern suits and discarding them while remaining in school.

FALSE TEETH DIVORCE CASE

Because he discovered his bride had false teeth, a Canadian bridegroom has asked divorce almost before the ink on the license was dried. The husband was a psychopath with a particular leaning toward good teeth, and he explained to the court he could not live with a woman whose teeth were false. He had not been advised of them before the marriage, he said.

LONDON HAS "SEVEN WONDERS"

London is engaged upon determining just which of its show places may properly be called the "Seven Wonders of London." Up to date the list is made up as follows: the Mansion House; the Houses of Parliament; the Tower of London; Buckingham Palace; the Bank of England; the British Museum and the London Zoo. There has been agitation to include Trafalgar Square, the Omnibus system and Westminster Abbey.

COOLEST JUST AFTER SUNRISE

Scientists have now declared that the coldest time of the day or night, not counting actual changes in atmospheric conditions, is the hour just after sunrise. This is due to the fact that when the sun first strikes the earth it causes the evaporation of a chilling moisture which is plainly felt by humans and animals.

AIMEE COMES TO PRELIMINARY HEARING

Aimee Semple McPherson, suffering from an infected knee, arriving at her preliminary hearing in Judge Blake's court, Los Angeles, virtually carried by two guards—Deputy Sheriff Claude Peters (left) and Wyman Rice, a worker at Angelus Temple. Inset is of Mrs. Ramon Gonzales of Agua Prieta, Mexico, defense witness. Mrs. McPherson asserts she collapsed in Mrs. Gonzales' front yard following her flight from kidnapers.

ILLITERATE ADULTS EAGER

Illiterate men and women in Delaware are the most eager students in the short term night schools in that state. More than 1,000 of them are enrolled in the rudimentary courses. It required sixty-nine teachers in fifty-five schools to give this instruction. Twice as many men as women attended. In one place where the school houses were not wired with electricity, the students brought their own lamps or lanterns to aid them in their study.

KEEP COUGHS OUT OF 'DANGER ZONE'

Coughing irritates the throat and makes you cough more. The more you cough, the harder it is to stop. And a cough threatens serious trouble if you let inflammation get into your bronchial tubes. It may spread into the "danger zone"—for these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral stops coughs quickly—almost instantly in spasmodic attacks. And it does far more; it brings lasting relief as its soothing, healing powers are absorbed deep down into the bronchial tubes, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

With the first swallow of Cherry Pectoral you feel its comforting warmth as it loosens up the tightness of congestion. It stimulates expectoration — Natures helpful plan for getting rid of phlegm and germs. Absorbed into the membranes themselves, this concentrated, hospital-proved medicine not only stops your cough but corrects the cause. And that is why relief is immediate and lasting.

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—30c; twice as much, $1.00. 4a1b

GEOLOGIST BRINGS QUEER EXPLOSIVE

Washington, Oct. 27—A mineral which exploded like dynamite when it was found and gypsum crystals as big as a fence post were brought here by Dr. W. F. Foshag, Smithsonian Institution geologist, from northern Mexico.

The explosions were ascribed to formation of the substance in an underground cavity insufficient to contain it, resulting in an explosion as soon as miners tapped an outlet.

MOTHER LEAPS, THEN DAUGHTER JUMPS TO DEATH

Plunge from Eleventh Floor of New York Hotel as Thousands Look

New York, Oct. 27—Police said today that Miss Dorothy Warschauer, 20, who with her mother plunged to her death last night from the eleventh floor of the Martha Washington Hotel before the eyes of thousands of horrified spectators, was at one time an inmate of an institution for the insane at Islip, N. Y.

Worry over her daughter's illness probably caused the mother, Mrs. Bertha Warschauer, 51, to make the death leap, according to a theory advanced to police by Dr. H. S. Inman, the Warschauer's family physician.

Mother and daughter, stylishly dressed, arrived at the hotel at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Just 30 minutes later passersby in the street saw Mrs. Warschauer leap from the eleventh floor. The body, turning and twisting in the air, crashed on top of an electric sign hung over the hotel entrance.

Thousands of pedestrians, attracted to the scene, were further horrified when the daughter smilingly stepped to the window and poised herself for the death leap.

The spectators stood still in helpless fascination, but Miss Marjorie La Plante, Montreal trained nurse, who occupied a room on the ninth floor, rushed to a small balcony in front of her window just as Miss Warschauer jumped. The daughter's body struck this balcony and was impaled on a spike. With Miss Warschauer fighting and screaming to the nurse to let her die, Miss La Plante held onto her grimly. Only a shred of flesh held the woman's body to the spike, however, and at least the tired nurse was forced to relax her grip.

The daughter was united with her mother in death as the body hurtled downward and struck the first body hanging over the sign.

The Warschauers lived in Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Warschauer's brother, Andrew Heyderman, declined today to throw any light on a note found in Mrs. Warschauer's room at the hotel which read:

"My brother knows all about the money."

STRANGE TALE OF DAVIS DEATH TOLD BY DOCTOR

Held That Florida Millionaire Was Doing Dare-Devil Stunt

New York, Oct. 27—A strange tale of a death was told today of the spectacular death, which ended the equally spectacular rise of D. P. Davis, the man who in a few years changed from "shoestring" peddler to one of Florida's most successful real estate operators.

Davis was lost overboard from the liner Majestic on the morning of Oct. 7. The events leading up to and following his tragic death were told today by Dr. J. C. H. Beaumont, ship's doctor on the liner which has returned from Europe.

There had been a party of some sort in Davis' rooms the night preceding the death. Finally, most of the guests left. It was almost daylight. At 5:15 o'clock a woman's scream was heard, attendants and passengers rushed to the Davis stateroom, and found that the millionaire had fallen out the porthole. The ship was stopped, and circled about for an hour, but no sign of the man could be found. That was the story told at the inquest in Southampton when the Majestic docked there.

Still is Mystery

The woman's name was not mentioned, and she did not testify. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

The mystery was how Davis had fallen through the porthole. It was explained that he was an accomplished athlete and fond of performing dare-devil stunts. The accident may have been the result of some gymnastic feat.

But Dr. Beaumont stated today that it would take a contortionist to get through the porthole, let alone fall through it. He so testified at the hearing by the British board of trade in Southampton. No other explanation was given, and the verdict of accidental death followed.

And so mystery still surrounds the death of this man, who would have made a fitting hero for a Horatio Alger novel of the "Rags to Riches" type.

Davis was accompanied at the time of his death by a 10-year-old son.

GENERAL CHANG DEAD, DISPATCH ANNOUNCES

Commander of Cantonese Forces Succumbs to Wounds Received in Battle

London, Oct. 27—General Chang Kai-Sheck, commander of the Cantonese forces allied with General Wu Pei-Fu, is dead, according to a dispatch from Shanghai to the Central News Agency.

Announcement of the southern war lord's death in a hospital at Changsha from wounds, the dispatch said, was made today by General Sun Chuan Fang, commander of the northern Yangtse army, who stated that Chang Kai-Sheck's Russian chief of staff, General Galen, also was seriously wounded.

It is believed at Shanghai that the Cantonese troops have suffered a defeat and are now retreating toward Canton.

CONDITION OF CAR CRASH VICTIM UNIMPROVED

William Hubley, 73, Ballentine-Av, Seriously Injured When Auto Skids

The condition of William Hubley, 73, Ballentine av, who sustained severe injuries when the automobile in which he was riding skidded into the ditch early Sunday morning, remains unimproved today it was reported. He sustained two broken ribs on the left side, an injury to his left side and cuts and bruises about his hands and head.

The accident happened when the car driven by Ernie Arndt of this city, struck the side of a bridge north of Owens, when the young man attempted to wipe the windshield. The machine skidded about 40 feet going into the ditch. Occupants of the car were brought to Marion by two young men from Newark who happened to be passing. The car was completely demolished.

Mr. Hubley's injuries caused him to require the attention of a physician for the first time in 48 years.

Woman Naturalist Tells of South American Trip

Mrs. Ernest Thompson-Seton Denies Disagreement with Mrs. Field, Jr.

Mrs. Ernest Thompson-Seton

TWO women accompanied the Field Museum expedition into the wilds of South America last spring. Only one returned with the expedition. Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., was the one who returned, and Mrs. Ernest Thompson-Seton, naturalist, big game hunter and author, was the missing woman.

There were stories of a possible break between the women. But now comes Mrs. Seton herself to account for her continued absence and to deny any disagreements. She left the expedition in mid-August, as agreed upon before-hand and organizing a party of native guides and bearers, spent more than four weeks in exploring the wilderness of Paraguay and the remains of the ancient Inca civilization in Chili, Bolivia and Peru. She brought back with her many trophies, many of them rare specimens to add to her collection.

Mrs. Seton relates her adventures as follows:

"When the Field Expedition left New York, Mrs. Field and I agreed to part about the middle of August, after most of the work had been done. This I did, leaving them in Buenos Ayres, hitting north to Paraguay.

"There I got together a small party, and we went off into the wilderness to the east.

"I had a wonderful time shooting the wild pig, which was not as large as some specimens I found in Africa. Then we ran into several bands of howling monkeys and I got some fine ones to add to the collection I am going to give the Field Museum.

"We gradually worked to the north and east, hitting the right of way of the Trans-Andes Railroad. We had to wait for some time for a train to come through, as the weather had held them up.

"The party got into Chili several weeks ago, and from then on I enjoyed myself more than any time before in my life. I explored the remains of the Inca civilization in Peru, Chili and Bolivia and brought back some fine specimens of their handcraft."

SEVEN NATIONS JOIN IN POLAR STUDIES

Berlin, Oct. 27—Polar experts from seven nations—America, France, England, Italy, Norway, Germany and Russia—will assemble here Nov. 9 for the first meeting of an international organization for the study of polar exploration by airship.

America will be represented by Prof. L. A. Bauer, magnetician of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, England by the well-known meteorologist, Sir Napier Shaw; Italy by Prof. Palazzo; Norway by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen; Russia by Prof. Schostakowitsch; Germany by Prof. Kohlschuetter.

The meeting, which will occupy three days, will be held in the great hall of the Prussian diet.

Cooper is competent to transact business in terms of dollars and cents.

You want a chief executive of the state's business amounting to many millions annually, who knows a business proposition from a political one.

Myers Cooper pledges his best efforts to get a dollar's worth of value for every dollar of the state's money that is spent. He has succeeded in doing this for himself. He is not a so-called "big business" man, but he is a successful, logical and well trained man in business affairs. He knows that neither a corporation nor a state government can afford to spend money it hasn't got, because the taxpayers must make good every financial obligation created by poor business methods and political maneuvering.

REED SWAMPED WITH APPEALS FOR INQUIRIES

Solon Urged To "Purify Politics, Punish Despots and Solve Municipal Problems"

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 27—Inspired by his activity in investigating the Indiana and Illinois senatorial campaigns, all America apparently had turned today to Senator James A. Reed, the "Missouri cyclone," with appeals to purify politics, punish political despots and solve municipal problems.

A shower of requests for slush fund inquiries, private investigations and public prosecution overtook Reed here as he rested before resuming the federal inquiry into the Ku Klux Klan's activity in Indiana's senatorial race and the exact relation of Senator James E. Watson, republican, of Indiana, to affairs of the hooded order. The appeals for Reed's intervention came from every section of the country, most of them being forwarded here from Chicago, Indianapolis and Kansas City, where he previously held sessions of his "one-man" senatorial slush inquiry.

The appeals asked Reed not only to investigate alleged corruption, and slush funds in senatorial campaigns, but for him to take his single-handed inquiry around the country for investigations of state and municipal affairs.

Rejects Two Appeals

From Connecticut came the appeal for another senatorial campaign inquiry, which Reed declined because of the limited time before election day. From Oklahoma came a request for an investigation of the Ku Klux Klan's activities in the state elections, which Reed rejected for a similar reason.

These were "official" requests while the remainder of the Missourian's mail carried "personal appeals."

There was one woman who desired the city administration of Philadelphia investigated; another asked for a federal inquiry into rum running near her Detroit home. A boy even asked Reed to write him a speech on the World Court, "no matter which side you support."

The request that tickled Reed the most, however, came from a man here in St. Louis, who asked him to "prosecute doctors who perform criminal operations."

All these requests the Missouri senator declined with thanks.

Calls Six Witnesses

Reed announced he was anxious to wind up the Indiana inquiry here tomorrow, although at least six witnesses have been summoned from Indiana points.

Their testimony, it was learned, will deal chiefly with the charges of Ralph B. Bradford, a Crown Point, Ind., former klansman, who charged Watson had participated in a klan conference in Washington, which resulted in the ousting of Walter F. Bossert, as grand dragon of the Indiana klan. Bradford said he learned of Watson's presence at the klan deliberations over Bossert's fate from Bossert himself and James V. Bolen, the klan's secretary of state in Indiana.

Gets Phone Call

The Missourian also announced he intended to "either remove the alleged facts from the domain of hearsay or show that the testimony produced was unfounded."

He said Watson, who denied the charges, could be represented at the hearing by attorneys, who would be given the privilege of cross-examining all witnesses.

It was learned today that Watson telephoned Reed last night that he—Watson—had no criticism to offer of the manner in which Reed conducted his inquiry into klan affairs in Indiana. This telephone call followed a statement from Reed that he would conduct the inquiry "as fairly as possible" and that "neither bluster or abuse can cause the slightest deviation from the course I have laid down."

Dean Thomson's Term May Last Two Years, Board of Regents Indicates

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 26—The interregnum term of Dean Thomson as president of Washington may last two years or more, it is indicated by members of the board of regents. Dean Thomson was appointed acting president when Gov. Roland H. Hartley's regents ousted President Dr. Henry Suzzallo. Worried by statewide resignation culminating in a move to recall Governor Hartley, the regents are now marking time on the question of selecting a permanent president, and intimate that Dean Thomson will probably remain as head of the institution at least until the outcome of the recall move is known. In making this decision the regents were influenced largely by the refusal of Stephen Ivan Miller, educational director of the American Institute of Banking, to accept the post left vacant by Suzzallo's forced resignation. Miller, who was formerly dean of the college of Business Administration at the U. of W., was offered the position at $18,000 a year but told the regents he could not consider the offer until the Hartley recall issue had come to a vote.

Dean Thomson has been connected with the U. of W. since 1902 when he left the chair of Latin professor at the University of Chicago. He has been dean of the U. of W. college of liberal arts since 1917, and became dean of faculties upon the recent death of John T. Condon, dean of the college of law.

Ousted as president, Dr. Suzzallo, nationally-known educator, is still undecided as to which of many offers he will accept.

Suzzallo's discharge by the board of regents came as the climax to a long political feud in the Northwestern state. Gov. Roland H. Hartley, elected on an economy program, fired the old regents and appointed new five members of the board, ordering them to curtail expenditures of state funds for higher education. Suzzallo had been getting $18,000 a year. His discharge followed.

Now indignant U. of W. alumni and other Washington citizens are launching a move to recall Gov. Hartley and reinstate Dr. Suzzallo.

The University of Washington is one of the largest educational institutions in the West. It has over 6,500 students this year.

MODIFICATION OF PRIMARY NOT PARTY PROBLEM

Vice President Dawes Believes System Should Be Largely Abolished

Columbus, Oct. 27—When outstanding political leaders such as Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, Newton D. Baker, Charles L. Knight, Harry L. Davis, H. H. Tinken and Robert A. Taft see in the present system of nominating candidates for state office, under the direct primary system, a menace to the traditional American form of government by majority rule, the people of the state of Ohio will not be slow in taking up the cudgel in support of the amendment to modify the primary, Nathan E. Cook, executive secretary of the Ohio Primary Modification League, declared today.

"The amendment to be voted upon next Tuesday, providing for revision of the primary system, is not a party question," Mr. Cook said. "Outstanding Democrats as well as Republicans have come to the front in support of the movement, realizing that the primary has been responsible for the rise of group and bloc domination in congress and the legislature and that government by parties responsible to their constituents, has taken a back seat in the past 14 years under the system which permits candidates to seek office upon individual platforms with responsibility to no one but themselves."

"Vice President Dawes touched the bedrock of the question in his address at the American Legion convention in Philadelphia when he declared: 'I believe that the primary system should be largely abolished, and that it we believe in the theory and plan of representative government laid down in our constitution by providing for nomination by convention, a better and more impartial class of candidates will result.'

"Mr. Baker a spokesman for the opposite party, says as to the primary, 'a system which permits men of obscurity to court the accident of being elected.' The present arrangement, he adds, is both 'hopeless and discouraging,' and even though the Democratic state platform is opposed to the amendment Mr. Baker declares he will vote for it.

Gives Opportunity

"To Charles L. Knight, of Akron, the election Nov. 2 gives the people of Ohio an opportunity to say whether they are longer going to endure this minority government by interested groups, or whether they will adopt the Daily Proverb—"A light-heeled mother makes a heavy-heeled daughter."

It isn't exactly what we would call Indian summer, but it is certainly bordering on.

It would be no more than fair were somebody to warn Marie that she must enter Chicago at her own risk.

By a week from today we will have another line on the relative merits of "pointing with pride" and "viewing with alarm."

With Hallowe'en but three nights away, it may be the part of wisdom to take in the porch furniture and anything else portable, including the dog.

It is not for us to decide who has been mendacious out in Indiana, but it's manifest that the situation has become decidedly involved.

The international bankers want Uncle Sam to throw down his tariff walls in order that Europe may dump more goods into this country. They must have begun to suspect that their European securities aren't a whole lot better than they should be.

A stray item says that some of the warriors in one section of Africa can jump seven feet high, and the odd phase of the thing is that there isn't a flivver in all that neck of the woods.

Mars will be nearer to us tonight than he will be again in the next 100 years, but even at that it's hardly probable that we will be able to hear the Martian martial music over the radio.

Practically all the $320,000 stolen from the Brotherhood Savings and Trust company, of Pittsburgh, has been recovered and the two men implicated are under arrest. And once again we have a straw to show that there is absolutely nothing satisfactory in crime.

Two famous opera stars, Mary Garden and Rosa Ponselle, say they would like to marry. It's a sin and a shame if artistic temperaments are going to bar two nice girls like Mary and Rosa from the joy and happiness they seek.

Newton D. Baker says he proposes to vote for the modification of the primary. Newton has been playing in mighty hard luck of late in trying to get on the right side of some proposition, but we felt that he would hit the thing off right if he kept on trying hard enough, and at last he has.

J. P. Morgan & Company sold $50,000,000 worth of Belgian bonds in half an hour yesterday, which means $50,000,000 more added to the $9,000,000,000 Europe owes American banking interests, which naturally prompts them to urge the cancellation of the European war debts owed to our government that their own securities may be correspondingly improved.

Why Not Harness Our Water?

"Water is our greatest undeveloped resource," said Secretary Herbert Hoover recently in commenting on our resources. "The United States has been blessed more bountifully with water resources than any other country in the world. The time has now come when we must put all our water at work.

"The first need," the secretary continued, "is a new and broad national program for the full utilization of our streams and our rivers and our lakes. We must get away from interstate litigation, sectional quarrels, politics. With a long-view, unified plan of action formulated, we can go ahead with the major engineering tasks to bring about complete use of water for inland transportation, reclamation, irrigation, flood control and power."

There is the story of the passer-by who saw a man wrestling with a big table in a doorway. He grabbed a hold upon the table and the two of them struggled till they were out of breath and forced to rest.

"Pretty tough," panted the passer-by, "but we'll get it out the next heave."

"Oh! You dummy," yelled the other, "I'm trying to get it in."

We seldom thing of Herbert Hoover that we do not think of this story for two reasons. One is because it has been credited to him. The other is that he's so different from the passer-by. When Hoover plans to do a thing, he first finds out what there is to do, studies the situation a bit, and then does it. That's his way. He is thoroughly practical. When he has something to say, and says it, he may be depended upon to know about what he is talking. He is in no sense of the word a visionary. His thought is almost invariably good, but for some strange reason those having the control of the doing of things do not see fit to follow his suggestions. At least, such is our conclusion.

Why wouldn't it be the course of wisdom for this country to wake up the wisdom of this particular suggestion of this gifted Quaker from the Golden Gate state? With our increasing demands for power and our annual coal strikes, the power situation alone would justify our conversion of our water resources to good account, were all the other blessings it affords left unconsidered.

Navy Day and Roosevelt.

This day—October 27—has a double significance to patriotic Americans in that it is alike "Navy" day and the anniversary of the birth of the distinguished American who was so largely responsible for our navy of today—Theodore Roosevelt. It was Roosevelt who, as assistant secretary of the navy, did so much looking to the rejuvenation of the navy of that day. To him, the Dolphin, the first vessel of the White squadron—at the time referred to as a "marine crazy quilt, too clumsy to fight and too slow to run away"—was a thing for pride, because he saw in it the forerunner of the White squadron which was sent around the world. And it may be said for the generally criticized Dolphin that it was the first vessel of our new navy to carry our flag to the great ports of the world. It was Roosevelt, the president, who sent "Fighting Bob" Evans and our battle fleet on its famous encircling trip of the globe. And it was Roosevelt, the assistant secretary of the navy, the "Rough Rider," the president, and the citizen, who at all times was the champion of a navy equal to any which sailed the seas. He preached the need of it in time of war no more than in time of peace, for he looked upon our fighting ships not only as engines of war, but also as developers of commerce and trade, believing that commerce would more quickly develop where they showed our flag. He never considered the navy that he did not at the same time consider a merchant marine, and he always held that the one should be a concomitant of the other—the merchant marine for the movement of fuel, supplies and troops in time of war, the navy as an advertiser, a business-getter, for the merchant marine in time of peace. And thus it is that the name of Roosevelt is inseparably connected with the American navy.

Those who live along our seacoasts where vessels of our navy happen to be stationed today may participate, as observers at least, in the programs mapped out by their commanders and port authorities. But the millions are having the significance of the day brought home to them by radio this afternoon and may listen in on the addresses again tonight. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and President A. C. Dalton, of the Emergency Fleet corporation are two of the speakers, the one to tell of the navy chiefly as a war machine, and the other of our merchant marine. And it may be said that never before in our history has better opportunity been offered to speak in pride of American seamanship, courage and dogged persistence amid difficulties than this year, when the almost miraculous rescues of shipwrecked crews accomplished by our merchant ships commanded by naval officers have added chapter after chapter to all that is highest and noblest and best in the annals of the sea. It was the good fortune of our liners to make such a record for the "Stars and Stripes" this year in rescuing the unfortunate of the world's shipping as has never been accomplished under any other flag in all history.

Among other speakers down for addresses or talks by wireless are Commander Richard E. Byrd, who is to recount his sensations in flying over the North pole in an aeroplane, who was the first to view it from the air; Commander C. E. Rosendahl, of the Los Angeles, who will speak of the navy and commerce in the air, and Commander Ellsberg, who will tell of the thrilling rescue by navy comrades from the depths of the sea of the dead of the ill-fated submarine, S-51.

We are unable to believe that such offerings can prove otherwise than interesting and profitable alike to all who "tune in" on them. It is upon such occasions that the radio proves more than a thing of entertainment; it is at such times that it becomes educational—an instrument for the improvement of the mentality and the development of our spirit of patriotism.

It is announced that young Kishnamurti will sail for home next month. Evidently the youthful Hindu "Messiah" considers our cases hopeless.

There seems to be some political activity down in the state capital, but this may be due to the fact that down there the workers get paid for showing activity.

We have hoped that the Mellett case might go through to its conclusion without the customary injection of "romance" into it, but it seems our hope was vain. The correspondents seem determined to develop one between "Peggy" Cavanaugh, "the pretty, red-haired Cleveland waitress" and Pat McDermott, "the key man."

100,000 Who Are Homeless.

The list of 600 reported dead in the recent Armenian earthquake has been reduced by a more accurate survey to 400, but the number of homeless has swelled to 100,000, entire towns having been razed as effectually as they might have been had they been made the targets for high-power guns at close range.

Such a catastrophe in any land would be sickening, but it is even more so than ordinarily when it occurs in such a land as Armenia. Here in America we have wonderful resources, we have means by which to render speedy aid. This is true, in lesser degree, in most lands. But Armenia has almost nothing. Practically all aid must come from the outside. Under such circumstances, the misery and suffering which is bound to ensue is beyond the description of any pen.

This year has been a notable one for the number and intensity of the demonstrations of nature's forces. There have been horrors marked by greater death tolls than any of the present year, but in all history there has not been a year which has brought to humanity so many great calamities as a result of nature's laws and forces. The year has called for many contributions from the fortunate for the needs of those who have suffered from quakes and storms and floods, and in previous cases response has been generous to all appeals for aid. Let us hope that the answer to the appeal sent out by the Near East Relief organization will prove no exception to the rule. The unfortunate plight of the thousands of injured and hundred thousand homeless in Armenia should prove so strong in its appeal that distance will prove no bar to the response to humanity's call.

NAVY DAY—T. R.'S BIRTHDAY.

Stretching Span of Life by Habit.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Away back in 1834 a baby was born in Boston. This was Charles W. Eliot who lived to be President of Harvard and well beloved of the whole world of education. He died recently, having lived more than ninety-two years.

President Eliot was a city man and lived in an environment which is not regarded as likely to promote longevity. But in spite of his surroundings, he lived to a wonderful age. His own testimony about it was, "I must have been born with what they call a strong constitution."

The doctor had a prescription for long life. It is as follows: "Eat moderately, sleep at least seven hours a night with windows open, take regular exercise in the open air every day, use no stimulants, enjoy all natural delights without excess in any, and keep under all circumstances as serene a spirit as your nature permits."

Dr. Eliot used to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning for a bicycle ride before breakfast. A few years ago he gave up the bicycle and took a long walk instead.

There is something interesting about men who take regularly some form of solitary exercise. They get all the physical value of the exercise and, in addition, a certain clearness of thought which marks them as leaders.

Men and women who continue their early habits of simple living and regular exercise are the ones who live to ripe old age. An abiding interest in the affairs of the word keeps the heart beating vigorously. There can be no sluggishness of body or mind in those who are honestly devoted to human service.

There is something wrong with us when we wonder what to do. The wonder should be, "What one of the many things I ought to do shall I do now?" Dr. Eliot had so many interests he could never be dull, and certainly could not be discontented for lack of something to occupy his time to advantage. His "serenity of spirit" was the natural result of well-spent days.

It is rare that glorious health is given to those who fret and fume, or to those who indulge to excess the cravings of appetite. The ingredient of Dr. Eliot's prescription, "enjoy all natural delights without excess in any," is sensible and scientific. It is more than this—it is an admonition which must be observed if you are to escape the inexorable laws of nature.

This prescription is one which everybody might adopt for the conduct of a well-ordered life. It may not result in ninety-two years, but it will guarantee a vigorous and happy life, whether it is a long or short one.

Canada and England.

[Houston Post-Dispatch.]

"Gloomy Dean" Inge was saying the other day in England that "the colonies are unenthusiastic," and he predicted a disintegration of the British empire. The proposal of the new Canadian government to send a minister to Washington will make the dean's words more impressive to his fellow-countrymen, who have been witnessing a loosening of the ties that bind the possessions of the mother country. Canada has no notion of seceding from the empire, but there is no question but that it is to seek much closer social and commercial relations with the United States. Canada's diplomatic business with the Washington government has heretofore been carried on by the British ambassador, who has maintained a special department in his office for Canadian affairs. The new liberal government in Canada is expected to take the initiative in taking Canadian affairs out of the hands of the British embassy, and to institute direct dealing between Ottawa and Washington. Fortunately there is no agitation in the United States for a merger with Canada. If such were the case, Britain would be more aroused than it is

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Remember, young man, you do not buy stocks and bonds and the goods of this world with money. You buy them with reputation. You buy them with your standing in the town in which you live. Unimpaired credit is your biggest asset. You build up the structure of unimpaired credit with square dealing, by paying your debts, by courtesy, thoughtfulness, and at least a little common sense.

A young man who fritters away what might be built into a good name is not always bad—not usually so. He is just ignorant—just a fool.

We all want to be somebody in our community. You begin to be somebody when you begin to behave like somebody.

Make up your mind, when you find a quiet man who is a good listener that he is probably worth listening to.

It has been said that the value of history is to give value to the present hour and its duty. If we are unfamiliar with the story of the past we have no checks and weights with which to measure the present. If we do not know what men have done in critical times in the lives of nations we do not know what they are likely to do now. We are in darkness. We are fearsome and perplexed in the midst of the trials of life because we know so little of the history of man. He hasn't changed much. History enables us to gauge his present and probable behavior pretty accurately.

So-called smart people, young men and women who have the idea they are educated, fall fast when they are asked some of the simplest questions. It isn't because they are dumb. It is because they have lacked the initiative, the energy, the wholesome curiosity to find out about some very ordinary things. For example, why does an omelette swell up when it is cooked? Well, if you will take the trouble to investigate by way of a book on popular science, you will learn that the thousands of little bubbles of air which are beaten into the eggs before they are cooked swell up when heated and make the inside of the omelette spongy.

One doubts progress seriously when he looks about and sees there is no fit successor for P. T. Barnum, Buffalo Bill, Brigham Young, Weston, the walker; Diamond Jim Brady, Tom Thumb and other fascinating figures who lived so long and comfortably in the public eye.

Vagrant Verse.

THE GARDEN OF NO-DELIGHT.

A pale and wasted moonlight falls
On lawns of velvet green;
Twelve stately fountains trickle down
To pools that lie unseen.
These fountain pools still wait unstirred—
No image falls therein;
Their mirrors, like a witless soul,
Know neither joy nor sin.

A thousand tulips edge the paths,
A thousand fringe the glades;
The heavy purple moontlower drapes
The marble balustrades.
Tomorrow will the tulips fade,
And gardeners will spade them up,
And toil unpraised, till thousands more
Upraise their empty cup.

The shadows hold no glad retreat
Of lover or of maid;
Along the empty terraces
No child has ever played.
No echo lies upon this air;
Winds weep among the trees.
Wistful tonight this garden lies,
Hungering for memories.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 27—In the past few years New York has had several "last appearances" in real life offering more high voltage drama than ever seen upon the stage. The passing of John Siddal, the magazine editor, was an epic in courage. He believed death was a mere doorway between two lives.

Told his span of life was short he confided in no one but his wife and laboured with Spartanic zeal until one evening he left his office with customary cheerfulness and never returned. Several days later he passed away.

At a certain dinner at Sherry's a young society girl only recently married grouped her friends about her at the end of the dinner and said: "I have an incurable malady. I want each of you to remember me as you see me now—vitally alive and apparently happy."

Then she slipped from the room and none of her guests saw her again. Four months later she was gone. And across the way at old Delmonico's a little later a popular bachelor gave a "farewell party" presumably as a prelude to a long ocean voyage.

He arose and said: "I am going to ask you, my friends, to drink a little farewell toast. I am going on a long, long journey and I lift a glass to the hope we shall meet again." The next morning he sailed and several days later jumped into the sea.

And there is the story of an actress on the eve of an European jaunt which apparently portended happiness and rest. At an after theater supper some one arose, lifted a glass, and said: "Until we meet again." The girl stood and replied: "We shall meet again—but not in a cafe."

Several weeks later came news of death by self-administered poison in Paris. There is the man who excused himself from a group of friends on way to lunch. He entered an office building saying: "I'll be down faster than I go up." He took the elevator to the twenty-seventh floor and leapt from a window.

The hostess of a cabaret had this notice posted at the entrance of her gyp parlor for the benefit of a discarder suitor: "Mr. Blank is forever barred from these premises." Thereby proving cabarets serve almost everything—including air.

In that pre-dinner hour of traffic desolation Fifth avenue acquires a small town neighborliness. The activity dries up. Butlers peep to the curb to puff at pipes and exchange below stairs gossip. Page boys from smart hotels stroll with dogs. The gray uniformed private police rap lamp post greetings. Pigeons flutter to the asphalt from cathedral eaves. Clubmen in dinner clothes enjoy a brisk before-dinner walk and have time to stop and chat. And in an hour the roar and confusion resumes.

* * *

There is no happier crowd than shopgirls rushing home from work in the evening. They sweep along in the delirium of traffic stopping at this mirror and that to brighten their lips and powder their cheeks. There is a spontaneity to their laughter like the lightness of champagne foam. Some meet their beaux at the corner, link arms and go on. Plodding pedestrians feel the slight touch of romance and seem to quicken steps, too.

In one-apartment house building uptown it was discovered that there were three white women with Chinese husbands. All the wives were above the average in looks and said they were quite happy. Great people, etc.—Copyright, 1926.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

People will tell me stories about college professors. Most generally I can't remember these stories, because they have something in them about Pompeii or Greek or the price of wine in the time of Nero. But I think I got this one nailed, and if I haven't why the professors will correct me.

There was a professor at Leland Standford, I think it was, according to this guy that was telling me this. And this professor was getting pretty dry, talking to his classes every day. Lord knows I don't blame him for not having much pep when he had to talk to the same audience every day, and the audience just about compelled to listen. Well, anyway, he got so dull and old that most of the young bucks went off to the classes of the jazzier professors, and they let this poor guy talk to empty chairs. But finally it got so bad there was only one fellow left in the room, and still Prof. read his lecture. And it kept on this way day after day, with just this one guy in the room, and the old Prof. reading his lectures. His eyes were so bad that he couldn't see this one fellow very well.

At the end of the term the old geezer called this one guy to him at the desk and he says to him:

"I want to tell you that your studious habits are appreciated. This hasn't been a very lively course, you know, and all the others quit. But I've seen you back there in the rear seat every day, and I want to thank you for always being on time and everything."

And the old Prof. was about to cry, he was so thankful.

"Why, as far as that's concerned," the fellow replies, "I ain't exactly a student, you know. I'm your chauffeur, and I had to sit there and wait till you was through, because you told me to, along last fall."—Copyright, 1926.

Who's Who and Why.

AUGUST HECKSCHER.

Plans are being made to present the proposal to eradicate the slums of New York recently advocated by August Heckscher, wealthy New York philanthropist, to the New York housing commission. Friends of the capitalist say he is willing to give close to $100,000,000 of his own fortune to help remedy conditions in Gotham's poor districts. He believes the work could be accomplished in possibly ten or fifteen years.

Heckscher, who was born in Hamburg, Germany, in 1848, came to this country in 186- as a poor immigrant. He worked in the coal business until 1884. In 1881 he helped organize the Lehigh Zinc and Iron company which later consolidated with others into the New Jersey Zinc company. He acted as general manager of that organization until 1914. Later he became a director.

He has also served as president of the Alabama Realty corporation, Sharon Power company, vice president of the Eastern Steel company, and a director in the Empire Trust and Crucible Steel companies.

Q. What is the color of liquid air? W. R. K.

A. When in a container, it is a slightly bluish color.

* * *

Q. Where is the ocean the bluest? J. O. G.

A. Authorities on oceanography say that the purest and deepest blue of the ocean is found in the Sargasso sea, in the South Atlantic, Indian, and Pacific oceans. It has been found that these parts of the ocean contain very little plankton, whose presence minimizes the transparency of the water and makes it appear greener. The Gulf stream is also very blue. In the open ocean, the water is bluish. Nearer the land it becomes green or gray. Within the thirtieth parallels north and south of the equator, the color is a brilliant ultramarine, and south of latitude thirty degrees it changes to deep indigo, which continues as far as the Antarctic circle where it changes to an olive green. The blue color is attributed to the rays of light being unequally absorbed by the water. Variations may also be due to materials in suspension or solution.

$10,000 SOUGHT FOR INJURIES IN AUTO MISHAP

Son of Dr. E. W. Imbody Brings Suit Against Mrs. Rachel Eckert

Asking $10,000 damages for injuries sustained in an automobile accident, John Imbody, 6, through his father, Dr. E. W. Imbody, 637 Cherry-st, today brought action in Common Pleas Court against Mrs. Rachel Eckert, 693 Windsor-st.

The child was struck by a machine driven by Mrs. Eckert, May 28, 1926, while crossing Windsor-st near the intersection of Windsor and Duluth-av, according to the petition.

He was knocked down and was unconscious for some time after the accident as a result of his head striking the pavement, the petition states. The injured boy suffered a fractured jaw and probable permanent disfiguration of the face, according to the petition.

Dr. Imbody asserts that Mrs. Eckert was at fault for the accident and was driving on the left hand side of the street at the time she struck his son.

Brings Suit

Paul Bush, Franconia-av, today filed suit in Common Pleas Court against The Victory Motor Car Co. to recover $450 paid on a new Chrysler which he purchased of the company in May, 1926.

Bush avers that the Chrysler cost $1,250 and that he paid $350 in cash at the purchase, giving promissory notes for the remainder and securing the notes by chattel mortgages.

On Sept. 25, 1926, the Victory Motor Car Co. seized the car although Bush had paid his interest on the notes regularly, the petition states. The Credit Loan & Discount Co. is made a party defendant, holding the mortgage notes.

Seeks Divorce

Charging her husband with wilful absence for more than three years, Mrs. Lottie Thomas, N. State-st, today filed suit in Common Pleas Court for a divorce from Clyde Thomas. The couple were married Nov. 18, 1918, and have two children.

Mrs. Thomas avers that her husband left home in September, 1922, and has since failed to provide and support her. She asks custody of the children and requests that Thomas be ordered to contribute to the support of the children.

Files Answer

L. W. Bosart & Co. today filed an answer in the foreclosure suit of the Home Building, Savings & Loan Co. against Frank G. Lee of this city. The company asserts that it recovered a judgment against Lee several months ago for $41.42 and costs. The judgment has not been paid, Bosart says, and asks that it be considered a lien on the property of Lee if it is sold in the foreclosure action.

Files Cross Petition

Jesse Danner, residing in Grand Prairie Township, today filed an answer and cross petition in the $15,000 foreclosure suit of the Marion County Bank Co. against Mr. and Mrs. Depew Head, of Columbus, former prominent residents of Grand Prairie Township.

Danner asserts that he is now living on the premises involved in the foreclosure suit and has an oral lease on the property until Feb. 28, 1927. The farm on which the mortgage is carried consists of 245 acres in Grand Prairie Township.

Danner asks that his lease be observed.

COUNTESS TRIES AGAIN TO ENTER UNITED STATES

Countess Michel Karolyi

Countess Michel Karolyi of Hungary is trying once more to force the State Department to permit her and her husband to enter the United States. The State Department's ban followed a visit of the Count and the Countess to America. The Count agreed to make no speech or statements. Going to Canada, however, the Count issued a statement, expressing opposition to the Horthy regime. Count Karolyi was the first president of the Hungarian republic and is bitterly opposed by the Monarchists.

Released on Bond

William Smith of this city, arrested Sunday and bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond following his plea of not guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated, was released on bond yesterday afternoon.

His companion, Alexis Guslovitch who was fined $10 and costs by Magistrate Joseph M. Justice when he pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication, was also released yesterday when he paid the fine.

The two men were arrested late Sunday night on the Upper Sandusky-pk following an accident in which the car of George Weisent of near Brush Ridge, was considerably damaged, and the Chevrolet sedan of Smith and Guslovitch was wrecked.

Get License To Wed

A marriage license was today issued to Robert E. Foster, 22, Wyandot County, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, and Miss Mabel Stamper, 19, Marion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stamper.

REFORMATORY CHAPLAIN TO ADDRESS KIWANIANS

L. A. Settler, chaplain of the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield, will be the speaker at the Kiwanis luncheon, Thursday noon, at the Harding Hotel.

A directors meeting will follow the regular noonday luncheon, it was announced today.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davis, 231 Olney-av, are parents of a son born this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. James Severns, Bucyrus-pk, are parents of a daughter born today.

SHOOTING AFFRAY

Arrested at Hotel

Following the shooting, McKinney went to the Iroquois Hotel, which he operates at 184 State-st and where he and Mrs. Wilson were taken into custody about 8:30 o'clock. Despite his wound, Johnsen walked to the home of H. T. Gardner, 451 W. Center-st, and gave an account of the shooting. Mrs. Gardner notified the police and also summoned the M. H. Gunder ambulance which conveyed the injured man to the hospital.

McKinney, police state, was armed with two revolvers at the time of his attack upon Johnson, but used only one. A search of the Iroquois Hotel was made Tuesday night but officers were unable to locate the guns until this morning, after McKinney informed Chief Thompson that he had holden the weapons in a coal bucket on the second floor of the building.

Find Corn Liquor

Search of the hotel also disclosed a trunk containing bottles of alleged corn liquor and this is being held at the police station as evidence to support a charge of dry law violation that will probably be filed against McKinney. Police have searched the Iroquois Hotel on several former occasions following reports of prohibition violations but were never able to find any liquor, they state.

Mrs. Wilson has been in police court twice during the last few months on charges of disorderly conduct and had promised local authorities that she would leave the city, they state.

McKinney is said to have a wife living in Louisiana.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT COMMUNITY CHEST

as the reports published by us at regular intervals keep the public posted on receipts and expenditures and all other Red Cross business, it is hardly necessary to reply to the Chamber's inquiry," Mr. Hulse says. He indicates that the Red Cross will not participate in the Chamber of Commerce survey until assured that there will actually be a campaign for raising the Community Chest fund.

The original purpose of the Red Cross, Mr. Hulse says, was to have a Community Chest established this year in time to eliminate the annual Red Cross membership drive. Because of the failure to get action on the Community Chest, it has become necessary to conduct the Red Cross campaign, which is scheduled to open Armistice Day.

While delay in the matter has prevented accomplishing anything this year, steps should be taken early enough in 1927 to provide Community Chest funds for most of that year and all of 1928, Mr. Hulse believes.

Idea Four Years Old

This plan of financing charity and welfare projects in Marion was first proposed four years ago by the Chamber of Commerce and inquiries sent out to representative citizens and organizations at that time resulted in an almost unanimous expression of opinion in favoring a Community Chest, the Red Cross head says. Public opinion now, he believes, is even stronger in its approval of the plan.

The Marion Retail Merchants' Bureau, of which Mr. Hulse is secretary, went on record in favor of a Community Chest some time ago, he states.

LOCAL KOSCIUSKO LODGE CONFERS SECOND DEGREE

Members of Kosciusko Lodge, this city, conferred the second degree on a class of candidates at the meeting of members of the Marion County Odd Fellows Association Tuesday night at Green Camp. Announcement was made of the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Mizpah Encampment of Marion to be held Nov. 16, in the I. O. O. F. Hall N. Main-st. All members of the association have been invited to attend the celebration. On account of the anniversary celebration the regular meeting of the association to have been held Nov. 18 has been postponed until Dec. 9, at which time officers for the year will be elected and awards made for attendance during the year.

Talks were given last night by Charles Ritzler of Marion and O. H. Apt, Waldo, on the work of the organization.

RED CROSS ANSWER PLEA OF MOTHER AND CHILDREN

The plea of a mother and two small children to the Red Cross yesterday for a soft coal stove to heat their home during the winter months was answered today when the stove was presented to the Red Cross and a few minutes later installed in the home.

The donor requested that his name be kept secret and that he should not be mentioned to the family whose suffering he has relieved.

IMPROVED

The condition of Miss Gertrude Mellee, 304 Blaine-av, who underwent an operation for appendicitis in City Hospital Saturday is reported improved today.

TAKEN HOME

Thomas Winston, Woodrow-av, has returned to his home, after a brief illness in City Hospital resulting from minor injuries sustained in an accident at the Commercial Steel Castings Co. where he is employed.

REPORTED IMPROVING

Miss Irene Robinson, 827 Silver-st, who underwent an operation for appendicitis in City Hospital recently, is reported improving.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Miss Helen Unterwagner of Galion underwent a minor operation at City Hospital this morning.

BIBLE AND RADIO SPARED

When Mr. and Mrs. George H. Thomas of Leroy, Kan., returned to their home after a flood they found everything inundated excepting the family Bible and the radio set. The book and receiving set were side by side on a little table which floated with the floor waters and stayed right side up with remarkable equilibrium. The Bible was no even wet.

TEXAS AWAITS MURDER TRIAL OF FT. WORTH PASTOR

All Texas, as well as neighboring states, are interested in the murder trial of the Rev. J. Frank Norris, Ft. Worth pastor, who goes on trial Nov. 1 for the murder of D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman. Chipps was shot down as he entered Rev. Norris' study to protest against some of the pulpit preachings of the minister. Accompanying photo shows the First Baptist church of Ft. Worth, where Rev. Norris was the pastor, the interior of the courtroom where Norris will stand trial, and the principals in the case. Judge Hosey will hear the case. Mrs. Chipps, widow of the victim, and Mrs. Norris, wife of Rev. Norris, both will be important witnesses.

was admitted by Slater who expressed deep confidence in the ultimate success of the investigation.

"I firmly believe that we are in the proper position to prosecute the case with the utmost vigor," Slater told International News Service. "Just hold your breath, boys, and don't force us to show our hands for a couple of days and we will have the real inside works for you without any guessing or surmises," he added.

Seeks Immunity

Named as the "key figure" in the slaying of Don R. Mellett, crusading Canton News publisher and successful in hiding from police for three months, McDermott, since his arrest Sunday, which was consummated through the aid of his brothers, has been dickering with Slater and Prosecutor C. B. McClintock for a guarantee of immunity in return for turning state's evidence.

McDermott, it has been learned from a reliable source has demanded that the first degree murder indictment against him be nolled. His demand has been met with an offer to reduce the indictment to second degree murder, saving him from the chair, even if he did press the trigger which sent Mellett to his death as has been claimed by the state.

Slater, playing the same sort of waiting game which he used on Jake Nesbitt, Troy wife slayer, which finally wrung a confession of guilt from Nesbitt, has been content to let 72 hours pass without visiting McDermott in his solitary cell.

Day's Program Planned

Although Slater announced yesterday that he intended to see the indicted man then, he halted all action pending the return of Bernard McDermott, brother of Pat, who was in Cleveland attempting to discover the luxurious apartment in which Pat claims to have made his hideaway.

Today's complete program of action was mapped out, discussed and rediscussed at a conference behind locked doors in Slater's room.

These two plans were thrown into the discard, however, and it was definitely decided that the investigators definitely commit themselves to Slater's unalterable and so far continuously successful methods. It is complete understanding of the psychology of the criminal that has resulted in Slater's solution of many criminals' problems in the past two decades of middle west crime annals.

Say M'Dermott Called

Authoritative sources reported today that it was Pat McDermott who had called the slain publisher on the telephone a few days before he was slain and warned Mellett that the "jungle" had marked him for its own.

Additional evidence that McDermott was vitally concerned in the death plot was unearthed when it was learned that the "key figure" had written from Philadelphia threatening the life of one of the authorities in charge of the probe.

Today, Slater told International News Service that on his visit to Pat, there will be no jarring notes, of shaking fists and loud raucous voices.

"I'll simply explain to him that it will be for his good for him to come through and make a clean breast of what he knows," Slater said, "for every advantage he can get of aiding himself."

Although Slater would not commit himself by saying that he would procure a confession today, he said that he was positive that a statement would be forthcoming very soon.

SHE TEACHES SNAKES TO DRILL

Miss Nora Wilkins, of Powell County, Kentucky, is a snake catcher by vocation and she makes a good living out of the job. She is only twenty-three years old, and she has caught and sold some rare specimens to circuses, zoological gardens and private collectors. She has, at her home, six snakes which she has taught to crawl in drill formation.

ISADORE DODGES COURT BATTLE OVER ESTATE

"I Am Disgusted Over All This Wrangling Over Dead Man's Bones," Claim

Nice, Oct. — Isadora Duncan, American dancer now living on the Riviera, doesn't want to be dragged into the legal tangle over the estate of her eccentric Russian poet husband Serge Essenine who committed suicide in Leningrad a few months ago.

After Serge's death his alleged third wife, Sofia Tolstoy, claimed the estate. Essenine's parents are contesting the claim on the grounds that Serge could not have been legally married to Sofia since he was still the husband of Isadora Duncan.

"I am disgusted with all this wrangling over a dead man's bones," declared Isadora. "I am the only real wife of Serge Essenine. The alleged third wife, Sofia Tolstoy, obtained an illegal marriage by forcing Serge to produce the certificate of divorce from his first wife.

"His father and mother ought to have his money. The only way I could be dragged into the affair would be to fight for the rights of his parents.

"I believe firmly that Essenine committed suicide in order to escape from Sofia Tolstoy who refused to allow him to drink. This must have been a hard blow for Essenine who was always a hard drinker."

KING SURPRISES FRENCH FOLK BY PLAYING POLO

English Alphonse's Favorite Language, Recent Match at Biarritz Reveals

Biarritz, France, Oct. 27.—Polo is King Alphonse's favorite sport and it would seem that English is his favorite language.

At a recent polo match played at Begnia Field, the King played on the Spanish team against an all-South American combination. At the end of the first chukker the King dashed up to the Royal Enclosure where was seated the Queen and jumping from his horse he paid his respects to Her Majesty with a military salute.

Advancing toward the Queen, Alphonse bent low and kissed her hand, then, much to the surprise of those within hearing, he addressed her in perfect English.

"Did you enjoy your lunch?" asked his Majesty.

"Immensely, thank you," answered the Queen. "Let me congratulate you on your playing."

"Glad you think so," responded the King. "But I thought I was a bit off my regular game."

DENMARK OUSTS EXECUTIONER

Herman Christensen, of Copnhagen, the only official executioner in Denmark, has been relieved of his job which he has held for more than twenty years. The reason given for the act was that it did not seem reasonable to keep him longer "on probation" for the reason that in all that time he has not been called on to officiate.

CROMWELL'S WATCH STOLEN

Scotland Yard officials in London are investigating the mysterious disappearance of Oliver Cromwell's watch from the London museum. The timepiece is a fine piece of workmanship, ovoid in shape and with only one hand. On the dial, which is silver, is a view of the spires of Worcester Cathedral and two browsing rabbits.

Only William Martin, the cook, has a grievance.

"I want to feed her majesty well, but she eats very lightly," he complained.

The royal party will stay in Montreal and delve into its historic background until midnight tonight when the train leaves for Ottawa. Canada has shown less curiosity and more nerviness than America in welcoming Queen Marie.

Traditionalized to royalty, the Canadian crowds are less fervent, but more respectful. At the public functions, the military gold braid and royal British red are more conspicuous than the high silk hat.

Pleads for Peace

In place of a great public banquet in honor of her majesty Toronto semi-officialdom gave a private dinner at the government house to which barely a dozen guests were invited. Newspapermen were persona non grata, which in Canadian, means "not on the menu."

Shortly after her arrival in Toronto, Queen Marie made a plea for the international handing together of womanhood for the peace of the world.

"There is no distance between the hearts of women and no frontier to the one large love which will one day rule the world," her majesty said.

22,000,000 FLIES CAUGHT

The fidelity to detail which is a characteristic of the Japanese, was never better illustrated than in the recent fly campaign. The government of Tokio having offered a bounty on flies, found it necessary to count them when the fly swatters began producing, with the result that the municipal clerks turned in a count of 22,380,000 before the campaign was over.

"DAY SLEEPERS" ON PLANES

Due to the ceaseless drone of the motors and the fact that at such height the landscape moves slowly, passengers on airplanes in Europe find they are easily lulled to sleep. This condition has made it necessary for the plane operators to instal soping, easy chairs with high backs for the comfort of their passengers especially on the longer trips.

Bridgeton, Scotland, recently has had an era of battles between unemployed youths, who attack each other with razors, iron bars, hammers and hatchets, and steps are being taken to round up the fighters.

A Persian cat owned by Mrs. Albert Thompson, of Ashfordly, England, to be seen protruding through the roof swallowed a darning needle which was of its mouth and was removed with the aid of pincers.

Facing the possibility of noteompleting its lines before the snow bew because of a British firm's failure to deliver the rails in time, officials of a railroad in Esthonia kept their promise to the public by making a duplicate rush rail contrat with a German firm.

HOLDS JEALOUSY MOTIVE OF MURDER AND SUICIDE

Delaware Coroner Says Indiana Postmaster Objected to Rival's Attentions

O. H. Betts, 50, postmaster of Garrett, Ind., murdered Mrs. Grace Brown, 48, Columbus, then committed suicide by taking poison and shooting himself, while in an auto on Powell-rd, nine miles south of Delaware.

This was the decision of Coroner Ray Davis of Delaware, and belief of officers investigating the case, following the finding of the bodies of the man and woman yesterday. The bodies were each pierced with a bullet and a bottle of poison was found on the floor of the auto.

A four page letter, written to Cloyd Brown, 18, Columbus, son of dead woman, revealed that the double tragedy was prompted by Betts' jealousy over Mrs. Brown received from another man.

Leaves Letter

The letter said:

"I could not stand it any longer and neither could your dear mother, so we planned to end it all." The note was presumably written by Betts.

Mrs. Brown lived in Garrett, Ind., for 20 years, before going to Lima last spring. She moved to Columbus a few months ago so her son could attend Ohio State University. She was a widow, her husband having died in 1923. Mr. Betts, according to Associated Press dispatches, has a wife and step-son.

Although it was known that Mr. Betts and Mrs. Brown were friends, their relationship was not thought to have been more than friendly, acquaintances of Betts said.

SALVATION ARMY TO FORM WOMAN TEAMS IN WARDS

Groups Will Have Charge of Home Service Relief Campaign

Organization of women's teams in the various wards for the Home Service Relief campaign of the Salvation Army will start next Monday and continue one week, will be under the direction of Mrs. D. R. Carpenter, 340 Parkbird. The work of organizing men's teams is in charge of J. W. Llewellyn, campaign chairman, and it is expected that a complete list of workers in both divisions will be announced by the latter part of the week. Mr. Llewellyn is being assisted by Asa Queen, Clifford Bartlett and Ben T. Wiant.

Ward workers in the women's division will be captained by Mrs. Anna Baxter, 401 Reed-av, and Mrs. Dora Phelps, 966 E. Church-st, First Ward; Mrs. Roy Watson, 592 N. Greenwood-st, and Mrs. Florence Brannon, 468 N. State-st, Second Ward; Miss Marabelle Fitch, Nye-st, and Mrs. J. P. Rewards of $2,600

Rewards totalling $2,600 have been offered by civic organizations for capture of the madman. Inspector of Detectives Haas has been recalled from his vacation to assume charge of tracking the maniac.

With every citizen on the alert for the brute, Chief of Police Harry Jennings today expressed the fear that due to extreme nervous tension innocent persons might be too quick on the trigger and casualties result. He issued a statement this morning asking citizens to remain calm.

Hundreds of American Legion members and Boy Scouts have volunteered for police duty. Last night, every block in the city was patrolled by at least one guardian of the peace.

Last Over Year

The outrages began here last November when the clubber beat the brains of two victims into pulp. He attacked two others who recovered. For two weeks a reign of terror existed.

When one thousand former servicemen formed a vigilance committee and began patrolling the streets, the crimes temporarily ended.

The killer again began his campaign last January. Two more women were slain and three criminally assaulted. This series of assaults ended when police rounded up and reincarcerated all patients who had been discharged as cured from insane institutions.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS in shades of pink and yellow arranged in a lovely color scheme for the annual guest day party given by members of the Three Arts Club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. F. Neidhart, 234 S. Seventh. Baskets of the flowers were used in profusion in the livingroom where the guests were received by Mrs. Neidhart, Mrs. Harry J. Merchant, president of the club, Mrs. A. A. VanAtta and Mrs. Howard Payne.

Crystal baskets filled with chrysanthemums and lighted candles in crystal holders carried out the color note of pink and yellow in the diningroom where a buffet luncheon was served, with Mrs. Harry J. Merchant and Mrs. C. O. Phallen presiding. Miniature corsages were given as guest favors.

Mrs. Eugene Moore sang a delightful group of numbers, "Daffodil Come Home," "My Paradise," and "To You" accompanied at the piano by Miss Helen Bever, and Mrs. William F. Orrison and Mrs. Clifford Bartlett entertained with a playlet, "The Matter of Husbands." Mrs. Walter Lee Sherfey's pleasing group of piano numbers, "Hark! Hark! the Lark," "High Flies the Crane" and "Hungarian Folk Song," was followed by a charmingly presented sketch, "Day Dreams of an Old-Fashioned Pair." A program of old-folk songs was presented by Mrs. Rex Robinson, Mrs. George Turney Myers and Mrs. A. H. Koons during the sketch and preceding the presentation Mrs. Carl Setterfield read a poem, "An Old-Fashioned Pair." Costumes for the sketch were original ones of 50 years ago and added a delightful charm to the playlet. Those taking part were Mrs. Walter Bailey, Mrs. C. O. Phalen, Mrs. Roy Waddell, Miss Jane Guthery, Miss Opal Setterfield and little Miss Patricia Orrison. The program closed with a pleasing talk by Mrs. Lewis Uhl, president of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs.

Guests included Miss Alma Orrison of Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Mrs. Caroline Kinley of Upper Sandusky; Mrs. Emma L. Taylor, Mrs. Minnie Blow, Mrs. Dale Lawrence, Mrs. Bertram D. Miers, Mrs. K. D. PRISON CELL CAN'T SEPARATE THESE Arthur Conklin and his bride, formerly Miss Mae Fuller.

Arthur Conklin and Miss Mae Fuller, both of Mattoon, Ill., had decided some time ago to get married. And even a prison sentence wasn't enough to halt the marriage. Conklin was arrested recently for burglary, and larceny and upon his confession, was sentenced to a term of from one to 20 years in the penitentiary. The picture was taken on the steps of the county jail at Charleston, Ill., and show them in the only honeymoon pose they know, for they were married in jail.

"Smilin' Thru"

That's the way merry Miss Hope Johnstone of 349 W. 85th St., New York City, meets each day! Easy enough when one has such radiant complexion to "smile thru," and such adorable dimples to display. Miss Johnstone can't tell how one can acquire the dimples, but she credits the beauty of her complexion to using Black and White Cleansing Cream. She says: "I wanted a cream that isn't stiff so it must be rubbed in and I was delighted to find the exquisitely textured Black and White Cleansing Cream, which melts at a touch, cleanses every pore and leaves my skin immaculately fresh and satin-smooth. I wouldn't be without this lovely cream a single day!"

You, too, will be delighted with results once you form the habit of using Black and White Cleansing Cream, which you can get from more than 80,000 dealers everywhere at the popular 50c and 25c prices.

If your dealer doesn't have the Black and White Beauty Creations you want, send his name to Flouch, Dept. S, Memphis, Tenn., and you will receive free a copy of the Birthday and Dream Book, containing many interesting facts on beauty, dreams and fortune telling.

"MOUNTAIN OF GIANTS" SUBJECT OF REVIVAL

"Mountain of Giants" was the subject upon which Rev. Mrs. Eleanor Davis of Tippecanoe City, who is conducting revival services at the Fire Memorial Baptist Church this week, spoke at a well attended service last night at the Church. The text was taken from the Joshua, Chapter 14, verse 12. Mrs. Davis designated a number of giants that everyone has to conquer among which were anger, jealousy, envy, worldliness and the fault of looking backward. Mrs. Davis said that such problems were to be faced immediately and with the help of the Lord.

Pastors from out-of-the-city who are assisting in personal work connected with the revival are Rev. H. R. Hazen of Bucyrus, Rev. Harry Manning of West Mansfield, Rev. G. Frank Smith of Green Camp, and Rev. Mr. Potters of Springdale, all of whom are pastors of Baptist Churches.

Said to be the only living person that was actively interested in the Disruption of 1843, John Hood recently celebrated his one hundred second birthday anniversary at Auchencrow, Scotland.

Waddell and Caledonia Y. P. B. Members Hold Hallowe'en Party at Forest Lawn

MEMBERS of the Waddell and Caledonia Y. P. B. were guests at the "get together" meeting and Hallowe'en party at which members of the Men's Branch presided as hosts Tuesday night in the Forest Lawn Community House, E. Center-st. Other guests included Supt. and Mrs. Carl L. Digel of the Marion County Children's Home.

In the grand march led by Miss William Hattendorf and Miss Lucile Hunt, honors for the most comical costume were awarded Paul Probst and Miss Esther Landes of Caledonia received honors for the prettiest costume. Following the outstanding entertainment a lunch was given in charge of Miss Edith McAfee.

Welcome Address

Mrs. J. M. Newby gave the address of welcome followed by a mock wedding given by members of the Caledonia Branch. Miss Esther Landes took the part of the bride, and Elmer Starrett the bridegroom. Clyde Barnes, pastor of Miss Leona Pace and LeRoy Hunt, the attendants. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Ray Zuckman.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

[illegible] reaching the fork leading [illegible] Birchwood he turned the car [illegible] drove back a few feet to a [illegible] ably selected for this pur- [illegible] a thicket of young birch at [illegible]. By day it would have been [illegible] now only the pale trunks [illegible] could be seen, the dark [illegible] in the dens shadows of [illegible]ground.

[illegible] there, headed toward home [illegible] they walked on down the [illegible] carriage trail, not wishing to [illegible] dogs until certain preliminar- [illegible] accomplished. Climbing [illegible] owing to Piggy's burdens; in [illegible] he carried the demijohn of [illegible] and the other firmly gripped [illegible] on his shoulder, from which [illegible] sounds still issued at inter- [illegible] Roberta, behind, had Janet's cloak [illegible] torch, the light of the latter en- [illegible] to choose their footing.

[illegible] the summit there was a delay [illegible] Piggy cut a small branch from [illegible] and fashioned himself a blud- [illegible] brandishing it once or twice to [illegible] weight. He also pried up the [illegible] of the box, tightly secured by a [illegible] of nails, so it could be easily re- [illegible]ed. Then, puckering his lips, he faced [illegible]ewood, and the crisp, calm night [illegible] was slit with the strains of his [illegible]gnant refrain.

Celia, who had listened for it in vain the night before, wriggled joyously in [illegible]er bed and wondered whether she dared flash back an answer. Twice through it sounded, and was followed by a fragment from a more modern and widely popular ditty, the significance of which momentarily paralyzed the prisoner—"There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight." Something was going to happen!

Undeniably something was, but none of them foresaw all the events of that memorable night, for not even Piggy's irreverent perspicacity had warned him of Clifford Nixon's insomnia.

Harassed by perplexity and doubt, unable to reconcile Scott's report of Roberta's conduct and conversation in New York with his own knowledge of her plans; remorseful because he had failed to meet her, yet assuring himself that he could not have done otherwise in the circumstances; apprehensive that she might have returned to Paris without seeing him, and equally apprehensive that she might be still plotting Celia's release, with disastrous consequences to himself and his business should she succeed—for in this event Scott would inevitably assume that her fiance had been in league with her and act accordingly—Nixon found inaction galling and sleep unthinkable.

Not having provided himself with reading matter, he decided late in the evening to take a walk, and almost without conscious intention his feet led him toward the center of disturbance, Birchwood. Only the fact that Piggy under the aegis of his lucky star, had chosen an indirect way prevented their passing him on the road. Noticing that the house was dark, Nixon walked on for a short distance, and was about to turn back when he heard a shrill whistle from the top of the hill at his right. He looked up, wondering whether anyone lived there and what the tune was that the fellow was whistling so lustily. As the refrain was repeated, he remembered the words:

Peter, Peter, keep thine eye
On the fair-haired girl, for she is shy;
You'll be sorry by and by
You ever had a daughter.

Nixon stopped short. Significant, that! Could it be a signal? When he heard the melodious perdition of an immediate period of feverish activity, he plunged into the brush and began scrambling up the steep hillside. Not knowing of the rough trail within a few feet of him, he fought his way in the darkness through a thick undergrowth, stumbling, slipping, occasionally falling, but striving ever upward, more and more convinced that at last he was about to find Roberta. The noise of his own progress deafened him to that of the conspirators rapidly descending on the other side of the spur, but he heard the salvo of the dogs and turned his course in their direction, making what speed he could in his effort to reach Roberta before she had time to take whatever mad action she might contemplate. Juniper and wild-blackberry vines stabbed him, impassable thickets of brush delayed him, but, breathlessly swearing, he persevered.

All unaware of the danger at their heels Roberta and Piggy arrived at the barbed-wire barrier with their burdens and concentrated their attention on the dogs, who were running to and fro on their own side of the fence, barking furiously.

"Get behind me," he said, wire-cutter in one hand and bludgeon in the other. "I may have to brain these brutes yet. If they're ugly, hop through to the other side. I'll keep 'em out. Got the top loose?"

"Yes; I'm holding it down. Ready?"

"One, two, three—go."

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

ROBERTA lifted her hand from the box over which she had been stooping and tipped it toward the woods. As the cover fell, five terrified and spitting cats, tails bushed and fur on end, streaked into the underbrush. At the same instant Piggy clipped the lower strands of wire with a sibilant, "S-s-sic 'em, boy! S-s-sic 'em!" Yipping, the three dogs tore past, to scatter in pursuit of game never resisted by any proper canine.

He cut the remaining lines, pushed Roberta through, and hastily pieced the clipped strands with lengths of wire from his pocket, drawing them loosely into place again. This done, he snatched up his demijohn.

"Now run! Those pups may be back before long and they'll raise the devil when they can't get in. Hustle!"

They ran downhill for a short distance through cleared woodland, jumped a brook at the bottom, and raced up the slope to the terrace, but stole around its graveled sounding-board to the back of the house, where they listened a moment before crossing the moonlit yard to the woodshed, in the shadow of the stable.

Here they worked swiftly and almost noiselessly, carrying armfuls of wood around the corner of the shed to the back of the barn, until they had accumulated a sufficient pile.

"Now you get behind one of those bushes at the side of the house, where you can see both ways," Piggy whispered, and began pouring the contents of his jug over the wood, while she sought the shelter of a clump of leafless shrubs affording an adequate screen in the moonlight. A few seconds later he joined her.

"Yell!"

"Fire! Fire!" Roberta screamed. "Celia! Fire!"

TAKE 76 ROBERTA

"Mother!" She shook the dormant figure beside her. "Mother! Fire!"

Now fire, as Roberta well knew when she suggested this coup, was the one thing of which everybody at Birchwood, including her father, stood in terror. Owing to the isolated position of the house, they were dependent upon their own resources for protection, and while the premises were well provided with hose and a large water tank, as well as with portable chemical siphons, nothing could have been better calculated to throw the household into confusion.

"Fire?" Mrs. Scott gasped, rolling out of bed. "Where?"

"I don't know," Celia breathlessly replied. "Somebody screamed."

Her mother seized a kimono, thrust her feet into slippers, and scuttled down the hall, sniffing for smoke as she ran. From the dining room she saw a glare in the direction of the barn and heard a bevy of shrieking maids tumble down the back stairs into the kitchen. The habit of a lifetime demanded male direction, and she ran out into the yard, screeching for the gardener, whose quarters were over the garage. He emerged shortly with a chemical siphon, and took charge of the situation, dispatching the maids for hose and other siphons.

Meanwhile, Celia, suspecting Roberta's hand in this diversion, slipped a petticoat over her nightdress, wrapped herself in a warm bathrobe, found shoes which she did not stop to fasten, threw a gown over her arm, and ran downstairs to the terrace in front of the house.

"Roberta?" she called. "Roberta?" There was no reply, and she ran to the side, wondering whether she had been mistaken in the voice she had heard. "Roberta?" Behind the barn she saw the glare of the fire and heard her mother's wild clamor for the gardener. Desperately she ran along the terrace to the other side, and behind the shrub Piggy said:

"There she is."

They sprang out and joined her.

"Oh, Roberta! I knew you'd come!" Celia flung herself upon her sister, but Piggy caught her shoulder and spun her around to throw Janet's long coat over the rose-colored bathrobe.

"Don't talk! Run!" he commanded brusquely. "Down the road."

Down the road, accordingly, the three sprinted. Near the highway Celia tripped over an unfastened shoe, staggered, and tripped again on a corner of a coat much too long for her, falling heavily. When they picked her up she cried:

"Oh! Oh! My ankle! I've sprained it!"

"Darn!" said Piggy. "I knew something was due to happen. It's been too easy. Never mind. You've got to make it now. Take her on the other side Bob. It isn't far. Come on, kid, be a sport!"

Whining and sobbing, as much from excitement as from pain, Celia hobbled along, supported by the other two, to the padlocked gate. With some difficulty and delay they hoisted her over it, and Piggy carried her down the road to the hidden car. Over on the hillside the dogs were assaulting high heaven with their alarms.

"Those pups sound agitated." Grinning, Piggy turned an expert sportsman's ear in their direction before starting his engine. "They must have treed a cat or something."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physicina in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

WIGS AND CURLS RETURNING

Mlle. Ginette Maddie.

The wig will be popular again throughout the winter season, according to the latest fashion reports from Paris. Fashion decrees that the artificial hirsute adornment shall be curled and silvered. The fad is designed, of course, only for formal occasions, the object being to make mademoiselle's "crown" conform and harmonize with her filmy formal costumes. Photo shows Mlle. Ginette Maddie, famous French beauty, wearing one of the new wigs.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Griddle Cakes—Three cups flour, one egg, milk, salt, two teaspoons baking powder. Break egg into flour and beat; then add milk until the batter is the right consistency, then salt, and baking powder the last thing before frying. Corn cut from the cob may be added to griddle cakes, or whole wheat, graham flour or bran may be used in place of some of the flour.

Grape Pie—Wash and stem a small basket of grapes, separate pulp from skins. Boil pulp fifteen minutes and strain to remove seeds. Mix with skins, boil ten more minutes, then add two cups sugar. Make a thickening of flour and water and add to grapes; let stand until just warm. Put in pie crust, cover with top crust and bake. Cinnamon may be added for flavoring.

Baked Beans—Wash beans thoroughly and put them to soak in cold water overnight. In the morning pour off the water, put on fresh and let them come to a boil. Pour off, put on more fresh and boil until the skins curl up when you blow on a few in a spoon. Put in a baking dish, add one tablespoon molasses, one teaspoon dry mustard, mixed smooth with a little cold water, one teaspoonful salt one pint cooked strained tomatoes. Put one quarter pound of salt pork in with the beans and bake slowly for three or four hours. The tomatoes may be left out if you do not care for them and water used in their place. Also, if you care to season the beans more highly add half a bottle of tomato catsup.

Once virtue was considered its own reward, but now those who practice it want a law to impose it on others.

take S.S.S. and be PROUD of a CLEAR SKIN

DOES YOUR MIRROR reveal a soft, clear, ruddy skin, free from imperfections, that is such a joy to every woman? Or are you embarrassed with blemishes, pimples, little eruptions, acne, blackheads and other unsightly and disfiguring handicaps?

Your skin is in reality your passport, and if your mirror reveals a blemished, unsightly complexion, it is time to begin at once to correct this annoying condition. When the blood becomes infected with humors or impurities, the circulation cannot supply rich nutrition to the skin, but instead it deposits the acrid impurities with which it is contaminated into the sensitive fibres and tissues. This causes irritation or inflammation which splits or breaks the outer cuticle, while the tissues beneath ulcerate, become inflamed, break out into pimples, and cause other unsightly irritations.

Just as Long as the Blood Remains Pure, the Skin Will Be Free From Eruptions

But when the blood becomes affected with humors, its nourishing and healthful properties are lost, and its humor-laden condition causes inflammation of the delicate tissue and fibres of the pores and glands. You have but to realize the importance of pure, rich blood in preserving the health, and that the source of all skin disorders is in the blood. Remove the cause, which is not in the skin itself, and therefore cannot be reached by a treatment that is strictly local, but is deep down in the blood supply.

S.S.S. Has a Proved Record Over 100 Years as the World's Best Blood Medicine

Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it clears the system and makes those so-called skin disorder impossible to exist. S.S.S. contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. It is also a remarkable builder of firm flesh which is also important to beauty. It will fill out your hollow cheeks, put the "ruby" of health in your cheeks and the sparkle in your eyes. Since 1826 S.S.S. has been beautifying complexions and giving women physical charm. That is why S.S.S. is accepted as the greatest of all blood cleansers and body builders. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores. The larger size bottle is more economical. Start taking S.S.S. today. Its marvelous results will amaze you!

Pyorrhea penalizes 4 out of every 5

What a grim penalty Pyorrhea exacts for neglect! It spreads its poison through the system, undermines health, destroys precious youth. And four persons out of every five after forty (and thousands younger) get caught in its relentless grip.

Hair Styles In Paris

By Edna Wallace Hopper

This is how girls and women were dressing hair in Paris when I was there last summer. Some have permanent waves, smooth and glossy. Some have one-week waves combed over the fingers. Some have sleek hair like a well-groomed boy's.

For all styles they use a new-type hair dress, such as I use. It keeps the wave or curl. Or it keeps hair fluffy, like my hair, if one desires. Or it keeps hair smooth and glossy without grease. At the same time it gives the hair a luster and enhances the color. I have never found a hair dress to compare.

All toilet counters now sell that hair dress as Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75 cents.

Whatever style of hair you like best, this is something you must try. It keeps the wave, the curl or the fluff. Or it keeps the hair sleek without grease. Then the added beauty it gives will amaze and delight you.

Quicksands of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

MY father's actual farewell to me was a hurried, almost peremptory thing. I guessed that during our last drive together he had left nothing unsaid which he wished me to know, and, as I loathe the word sensibly as much as he does, our leave taking might, to all appearances, have been one prefacing a separation of two or three days.

But there was a look in his eyes as he left me at the door of the apartment—for he would not permit me to go to the railroad station—which haunted me for a long time after he had gone. It was such a look as I had seen in the eyes of soldiers going away to the World War when they gazed for the last time upon the faces of their nearest and dearest.

I had little time for morbid speculation, worried though I was over my father. My days were winged, so rapidly they flew past me, and I began to have the breathless feeling of trying to catch up with life.

If it had not been for a sudden summons away from the city which came to Dicky only a day or two after my father's departure, my problems would have been still more complicated. For I could not rid myself of a fear, engendered by my father's veiled warnings, that my husband's allegiance was drifting slowly but surely away from me to Edith Fairfax.

Honestly searching my heart, I knew that for the last few weeks, at least, I could not blame my husband wholly for this. He had made several tentative efforts to resume our old comradely good times, and there was a subtle respect in his manner which had not been there since Miss Fairfax's association with him in the art magazine enterprise. Her signal success had led him to exalt in the economic value of her time and depreciate mine. My selection for Philip Veritzen's dramatic research work had changed all this, but Dicky's attitude had stung me so deeply that I could not forget all at once the humiliation I had endured at his hands. I had displayed no active resentment toward him, treating him, indeed, with courteous friendliness, but I had managed to be extremely busy whenever he asked me to accompany him anywhere. I knew that Lillian approved this procedure, for she had said that Dicky needed "a course of sprouts" to bring him to his senses, but I also knew that resentment against my husband had not been my only reason for limiting my time with him. My work for Philip Veritzen, and more recently my luncheons with him for the discussion of the new drama had so taken up my time that I really had had none left to give to Dicky.

It had taken my father's amazing counsel to make me see that the course I had been pursuing might prove a boomerang to me, and I was glad, indeed, that Dicky's projected trip intervened so opportunely. For a few weeks he would be so far away and so busy—for he had been summoned to do the illustrations of a most important book of the author—that he would have no time to think of either Edith Fairfax or me. On the other hand, while he was gone I might find the opportunity to look sanely and thoughtfully at my pattern of life and see where my needlework was at fault.

It was an opportunity that did not seem to materialize. On that very day I took a bus up the Drive and went into the park bordering on the Hudson for a quiet hour of stock-taking with my soul. Presently I stopped short in front of a bench upon which sat a youth and a girl, both smoking cigarettes. Then I recognized Jack Leslie and Mary Harrison, even as the girl's voice sounded impudently in my ears.

"Hello, Auntie Madge! Won't you join us?"

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

LEGIONNAIRES GIVE BENEFIT AT MT. GILEAD

Congressman Brooks Fletcher Fills 12 Speaking Engagements Yesterday

Mt. Gilead, Oct 27 - "When A Man Gets A Vision," was the title of the lecture delivered by Congressman Brooks Fletcher in Lewering Hall last night when he appeared on a program with Mrs. Fletcher and Mrs Marie Kimmel Baker given for the benefit of the local American Legion Post.

Mrs. Fletcher opened the program with a negro folk songs. In a short talk she told of many experiences she and Congressman Fletcher had during their seven months service in Washington. She told of the trials of house hunting at the capital. In describing a reception given by President and Mrs Coolidge at the White House, the speaker paid tribute to the hospitality and charm of the first lady of the land

Mrs. Fletcher closed her part of the program by singing "By the Waters of the Minnetonka." This was a beautiful number and was given with expression and feeling.

In spite of having delivered twelve speeches yesterday, Mr. Fletcher was at his best, and his voice was abundantly distinct to the utmost precincts of the house, which was filled to capacity to hear the program.

The speaker delved into the history of the past to draw forth illustrations of people, who have caught the vision and have risen to the heights of service and worth to their fellowman as a result. Joan of Arc was mentioned, who led the armies of France to victory over the English.

"The accomplishments of Edison, Wright and others have made possible our civilization were discussed. Their achievements were made possible solely as the result of catching a vision.

"Every man and woman who has accomplished great things in the world has caught a vision," the speaker declared.

Congressman Fletcher always delights Mt. Gilead audiences and never fails to attract a capacity house. His beautiful and abundant rhetoric, his profound scholarship, his dramatic and beautiful oratory, his scintillating wit and humor, make him easily the most outstanding and inspiring speaker to appear before local audiences for many years.

Congressman Fletcher will speak at the Mt. Gilead Baptist church Sunday night. The public is invited and a full house is anticipated.

"Lantern" Staff Approved By Galion School Faculty

Galion Oct 27 Students of Galion High School who will serve on the staff of "The Lantern," the annual publication of the school have recently been elected and approved by the faculty. The work of editing the paper will be in the hands of fourteen representative boys and girls who were elected to their positions because of excellence in English and executive ability. In previous years the majority of the staff members were chosen from the Junior class. This year, however, all classes were given equal representation and a better publication with more careful distribution of them is planned. Owing to a controversy among faculty members the election was delayed and the staff is getting an unusually late start but expect to overcome this handicap.

Martha Carol Schoffner, popular G H S Junior is editor in chief and Herman Hoard, Junior, will have charge of the business management. Both were members of last year's staff and are well equipped to handle the work this year.

CODY FUNERAL HELD TODAY AT MARYSVILLE

Veteran Hotel Manager Claimed by Intestinal Illness of Several Years

Marysville, Oct 27 - Funeral services were held this morning at 10 o'clock in Ladies of Lourdes Catholic Church for John Cody, 77, for 22 years manager of the Cottage Hotel in this city. Death was due to intestinal trouble with which he had been ailing for a number of years.

Mr. Cody was born in Tipperary County, Ireland, and came to this country when a boy with his parents. He was one of eight children of whom all are now deceased except one sister, Mrs William Cane, of this city. The family first located in Union County and after his marriage to Miss Mag Burr, Mr. Cody moved to Marion where he resided until 1903, at which time he removed to Marysville to take charge of the Cottage hotel.

The following children survive, G. W. Cody, of Havanna, Kansas; R. L. Cody, Henry County, Ohio, Mrs. Mary Hess, of Wellsburg, W. Va; Mrs. Clara Henry, deceased. All were born to his first union. In 1893, he was married to Julia Carney. No children were born to this second union.

C. H. CRAMER AWARDED HONORS AT UNIVERSITY

Mt. Gilead Boy Maintains Highest Average Among Fraternity Men

Mt. Gilead, Oct. 27 - Clarence H. Cramer, 1188 Kohr Place, Columbus, graduate of Mt. Gilead High School in the class of 1922, a senior in the college of arts at Ohio State University, and a member of Delta Tau fraternity, was awarded a medal at the sixteenth annual scholarship night exercises, held Monday evening in the Ohio State University chapel. With a perfect record, he had the highest academic average of any fraternity man in the university for the year 1925-26.

Cramer maintained an average of 100 last year. This represents the highest grade possible in all work taken.

He graduated from the local school with a high average. In addition he was a star in athletics, participating in all sports.

LITTLE HOPE HELD FOR RECOVERY OF PFEIFER

Ashland College Coach Confined at Hospital with Critical Illness

Galion, Oct. 27—Recent reports state that there is no change in the condition of Coach Walter "Wig" Pfeifer, former Galion man, now coach at Ashland College, who has been critically ill for the past two weeks. Hospital authorities declared Saturday night that there was no hope for his recovery. Sunday he was reported as being somewhat improved and since that time there has been no change.

Coach Pfeifer is well known throughout the state for the excellent teams he has trained during his five years in athletic work and this year had hopes of making a good record as college mentor. His exceptional ability as a football coach has already been demonstrated as the wearers of the Purple and Gold of Ashland have won three successive games after two scoreless seasons. Now without the guidance of their leader they are keeping up the spirit, practicing his teachings and piling up large scores against opponents.

Galion is greatly concerned over the illness of their athletic hero of many years and anxiously await the bulletins, issued by Ashland hospital attaches several times each day.

LA RUE TEAM TO MEET RAYMOND HIGH FRIDAY

Visitors Have Record of Win Over DeGraff and Tie with Woodstock

LaRue, Oct. 27 - LaRue High School's gridiron warriors flushed with a 13-0 win over Harding High School's Reserves last week are working hard in preparation for their game here Friday with Raymond High School.

Raymond High School gridsters will come to LaRue Friday with a record of a 40-0 win over Degraff and a scoreless tie with Woodstock High, the latter having previously defeated LaRue by an 18-0 score. Scouts from LaRue who have seen Raymond play report a fast aggregation and one which will make LaRue step fast to win. Raymond is said to be heavy, hit the line hard, and have a very clever aerial attack.

Coach Jackson hopes to be able to use all his regulars in the game with Raymond Friday, something he was not able to do against Harding last week due to sickness of M Allen and injury to C. Whitman.

A number of new plays have been added to LaRue's list this week and with the feeling that they have struck their stride which will win the remaining games on their schedule, the dope has it that they have a little better than an even chance for victory, Friday.

Bacon, of Marion will handle the referee's whistle while Elmer Ogden will act as headlinesman Game will be called promptly at 3 o'clock eastern standard time

DEMOCRATIC RALLY AT LA RUE OPENS SERIES

All but Three of County Candidates of Party Attend Meeting

The first of a series of Democratic rallies planned for three villages of the county this week took place Tuesday night in the Knights of Pythias hall at LaRue with a large crowd in attendance. The Democrats are trying out a new plan in connection with these meetings by doing away with the customary set speeches and substituting social features. The innovation proved to be pronounced success in the LaRue gathering, party leaders report. The program closed with a social session during which cider and doughnuts were served.

Hector S. Young, chairman of the County Central Committee, presided and gave a brief opening talk in which he commented on the various candidates for state, district and county offices. All but three of the county candidates were present and were introduced to the audience.

The next meeting of the series will take place in Caledonia, Thursday night. A Republican rally will be held in Martel tonight with James R. Hopley, of Bucyrus, candidate for congress, and former Common Pleas Judge Grant E. Mouser of Marion as the principal speakers.

Mrs. Orr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hedges of Mt. Gilead.

MARYSVILLE TO CLASH WITH BELLEFONTAINE

Union County Seeking Revenge for Defeats of Other Years

Marysville, Oct. 27 - With five victories scored by them this season Marysville High School football eleven is preparing for a stiff contest with Bellefontaine high school at that place Friday. All contests played between the two teams have gone against the locals in the past several years, last year's game resulting 14 to 0 in favor of Bellefontaine.

Local fans and members of the team were rather downcast Monday morning when they came to classes and found that three main stays of the line were out with sickness and illness. Laird, main ground gainer of the line, was out with an injured chest muscle, having been kicked above the heart in the Upper Arlington game last Friday. "Barrel Galloway, running mate to Laird, was taken ill with pneumonia, Baker, an end was also down with illness but was back in school Wednesday.

Remaining members of the squad who have been out for practice have gone through some stiff practice sessions this week. Coach Kingsmore expects Bellefontaine to let go on an aerial attack as they did in their game with London last week and has taken the proper precautions. Bellefontaine has always had a classy eleven and if locals can score another victory it will take eleven men to do it.

"Bob" Spurrier, manager of the local pigskin carriers, announce that a game which will undoubtedly prove interesting has been scheduled with Worthington in the place of the Kingscreek team. The latter was ruled out of the association for using three ineligible men.

BRIDGE WORK AT CARDINGTON PROGRESSING

Work Hampered Several Times by High Water in Olentangy

Cardington, Oct. 27—The construction of the new railroad bridge which spans the Olentangy River is progressing nicely.

It was begun about ten weeks ago under the supervision of The Mead Baker Construction Company of Indianapolis, Ind. The work has been hindered a great deal by high water portions of it having been washed out the third time.

The first half of the south arch was poured last Friday, in the short period of seven hours and contained 160 yards of concrete. The work was greatly facilitated by the use of the large mixer with the bucket working on a 160 ft tower. Since this abutment is installed the danger from high water is greatly relieved. The new bridge when completed will be a three arch structure 120 feet in length and the proper width to accomodate two tracks. It will probably require a couple of months yet before it is completed.

UPPER SANDUSKY CLUB HOLDS LADIES' NIGHT

Hallowe'en Masquerade Held at Community House; 26 Couples Attend

Upper Sandusky, Oct. 27—The Young Men's club of this city entertained at a Halloween party and "Ladies' night" Monday night at the Community House. Twenty-six masked couples were present. Morris Smith won first prize for the best gentlemen's costume, being dressed as an oriental. The ladies' prize was captured by Miss Frieda Koehler. In a "guess who's who" contest, Dr. R. M. Rossel won the gentlemen's prize and Miss Kathryn McClain, the ladies' prize. Russell Main and Miss Gladys Ellis won consolation prizes.

Those present from out of town were Misses Grace Benton and Cecile Scott of Bucyrus and Miss Etta Kemmerly of Carey.

CYRUS LOCHER MAKES ADDRESS AT KENTON MEET

Chairman Dye Predicts Donahey Will Receive 100,000 Majority

Kenton, Oct. 27—Declaring that the public utility and tax commissions of the State of Ohio are still controlled by Harry L. Davis, former governor of the state of Ohio, Cyrus Locher, Ohio director of commerce, in addressing the Democratic meeting here last night declared that they must be returned to the people through the election of Governor Vic Donahey this fall and of a senate that will confirm the appointment of "free, honest and unbossed successors to these commissions."

Preceeding the gathering last night, the Democrats of Hardin county completed a tour of the county conducting a series of fourteen meetings. Principal speakers were: Miss Susan Rebham, Columbus, secretary to Judge Florence Allen, Thomas Dye, Columbus, chairman of the state Democratic committee, and Grover Cleveland Maxwell, Columbus attorney.

During the course of his address Mr. Locher denied that the state was bankrupt as charged by Myers Y. Cooper. "The charge that increased expenditure during the administration of Governor Donahey almost bankrupted the state treasury is false and ridiculous." The speaker also defended the administration of the state executive in the highway and welfare departments.

Chairman Dye stated that Governor Donahey would carry the State of Ohio by at least 100,000. He bitterly flayed the huge expenditure made by Mr. Cooper in securing the Republican nomination.

CHURCH WORKER IS NEWEST FIGURE IN HALL-MILLS CASE

Mrs. Minna Clarke

The newest development in the famous Hall-Mills murder case is the action of authorities in placing Mrs. Minna Clarke, a church worker, under arrest on a charge of being an accessory in the murder of Mrs. Mills. It is said Mrs. Clarke's arrest grew out of the failure of the investigators to get from her all the information which they suspect she possesses. She is expected to play a prominent part in the trial.

Well-Known Musician Restored to Good Health

A Victim of Nervous Indigestion, Sluggish Liver and Run-Down Condition, Finds Long-Sought Relief. Strength Restored. Praises Tanlac

Charles Lesko, 2442 Fremont Street, Cleveland, a popular musician, surprised even his closest friends by his recovery from a long siege of illness.

"My work makes it necessary for me to be in the best of health, always," says Mr. Lesko. "I was worn almost to the point of exhaustion when I began taking Tanlac.

"Nervousness caused all my trouble. Suffering from indigestion, being unable to sleep and getting up in the morning tired, sapped my strength. My liver was torpid and this slowed my life, made me feel druggy.

"I sought relief. Everything I took failed to help me. Then after reading about the powers of Tanlac I tried this wonderful tonic. The first bottle gave me an appetite. Indigestion disappeared. I began to sleep well and arise in the morning refreshed. Soon my nerves calmed down.

"Today I feel better than I have felt in years. All my thanks to Tanlac. It is bringing me relief and restoring my health."

Mr. Lesko is only one of thousands who have found happy relief from pain and gained new strength taking Tanlac. It usually builds up the body, wipes out poisons and suffering. Heed their advice. Keep well, keep youth and health—take Tanlac.

More than 1,000 cities laid concrete streets in 1925

What Tennessee Cities Have Discovered About Concrete Street Paving

Fifteen years ago some of the leading cities of Tennessee were just beginning to learn the merits of concrete street paving.

During this period traffic has grown tremendously. Many Tennessee cities have found out that only concrete will stand up under the loads and speeds of modern traffic. They have found out that concrete pavement costs almost nothing to maintain. They have learned that it is safe for all traffic, in any weather. And that this handsome pavement dresses up any community where used.

Tennessee cities today have a total of 1,500,000 square yards of this modern, permanent pavement. This will be greatly increased during 1926. Last year 27 of these cities placed contracts for additional concrete paving.

Concrete streets will bring new prosperity to any city or town.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

Tradition Calls for Harding to Defeat Bucyrus in Tilt Saturday

THREE years ago, a Harding High football team defeated a Bucyrus High football team. It resulted that their accomplishment was merely the establishment of a precedent as other Harding defenders have followed in exactly those footsteps. Tradition goes not without full consideration among high school football players and the coming battle Saturday on the home field of the Crawford County eleven takes on an aspect of importance.

Along with turning the yearly trick of making Bucyrus grovel in defeat, the Red and Black warriors are confronted with proposition of making for themselves a reputation in North Central Ohio league circles, something that mid-season finds not even started. Smarting yet from the defeats received in titles with Galion, Ashland and Columbus Central, only partially soothed by a week's rest and a well earned victory over Findlay, Harding will travel to Bucyrus an undeniably weak sister.

Coach Paul Sprout was in anything but an optimistic turn of mind as his squad warmed up on the Central Junior High field preparatory for leaving for the Fairgrounds for a scrimmage session. Many faces that at the start of the season were expected to cause some concern in rival camps during the season was missing. A week's inactivity had done little in minimunizing the hospital lists. Houghton, Lewis and Rennert of the first team are still in "civies" Sprout considers it unlikely that the first named will see action at anytime during the season. A dislocated collarbone received several weeks ago has failed to respond readily to treatment. In the scrimmage several sprains that were scheduled to be in the discard this week, made it plaintively known that they were not it in the discard but still of sufficient import that their owners may be kept on the sidelines Saturday. Evans, a first stringer had the misfortune to have the nail torn from the small finger on his left hand Monday.

Forgetting the unkindnesses of fate, the players took up the business of scrimmaging with a will and the varsity displayed their offensive strength in a neat fashion. Considerable attention was given the blocking of the interference backs on running plays, a type of a offense that no doubt will play a real part in any success that Harding may enjoy Saturday.

Monnett Is Good

Impressions made upon local scouts at the Bucyrus-Ashland game by the versatile performance of Monnett and Kisch, Bucyrus backfield stars were mirrored in the defensive drill given the Harding players last night. Monnett is/said to be a dangerous man in a broken field and figures prominently in Bucyrus' aerial attack and running plays. Kisch is the bulwark of Monnett's interference and is the outstanding line plunger on the squad, weighing 180 pounds he has found little difficulty in gaining consistently on opposing lines this season.

The Mansfield eleven holds the distinction of being the only team to defeat Bucyrus this year. Galion, Ashland and Lima Central have all met the big red team this season and have since tried to forget the football setback. A blocked punt which resulted in a touchdown and a cleverly executed run by Monnett that proved successful on the try-for-point play were responsible for the 7-6 triumph over Ashland last Saturday.

In any event, the contest Saturday will undoubtedly be one that will try the strength of both contestants to the breaking point—and either outfit is liable to break; the other in that event will collect all the roses. Harding will be there to live up to the tradition established by former Red and Black elevens. Bucyrus will be there determined to turn the fondest hopes of the Marion aggregation into bitterness. With an acknowledged offensive strength, the latter may succeed, on the other hand, the same lot that befell Findlay may be theirs, that of seeing Harding players snatch victory from their hands with spirited flashes of "heads-up" football.

Lots of Hot Coals
More Grim Fate
Galloway on Block?

By NORMAN E. BROWN

OH, what a winter the approching one is going to be for the stove league boys.

What with four or five changes in the managerial ranks of the major leagues, half a dozen big league stars supposedly on the auction block, Babe Ruth, about to suggest a $150,000 a year salary for himself and Bucky Harris touring Europe, how are the boys to break away in time for dinner or the school board meeting?

Now comes along the report that Bob Meusel, curly headed and one of the most graceful and languid batters in the business, is about to be thrown to the wolves (the one with the biggest bank account) before the 1927 season opens.

It is said that Huggins and Colonel Ruppert, both of whom have taken somewhat of an interest in the Yankee team, are peeved at Robert because of his poor playing in the world's series. He has been referred to as a "second Snodgrass" because of his muff which sealed the fate of the Yankmen in the final game of the last world's series.

• • •

ANOTHER grim trait of Dame Fate. Meusel has given the best part of his baseball life to the Yankees—has been a member of the various "Murderers' Row" aggregations that carried the Yanks to four pennants in six years. And he is right now at the peak of his game. Despite all this his poor showing in one game of a crucial series is about to shove him out of the big town and big money, for the chances of collecting big dough with the Yanks are always good.

However, Huggins isn't going to pass Meusel on for a couple of old war horses or what have you. It will take a brilliant pitcher, a sweet infielder and possibly an outfielder to coax Huggins into a trading move. And the bidder may then have to cross Colonel Ruppert's palm with a few grand to put the deal across.

• • •

AND speaking of baseball. It was suggested the other day that Chick Galloway, Athletics' shortstop, would find himself on the block this winter following the purchase by the Macks of Joe Boley, Baltimore star.

Now the general impression is that Mack will keep Galloway. More than that, he hopes the acquisition of Boley will spur Chick on to greater endeavors. Lack of fire has always seemed to be Galloway's main weakness. Faced with the prospect of being benched, this smooth fielder may "step on it" and show his stuff. Stranger things have happened. And Mack could well afford to keep Galloway for second defense anyhow.

ST. MARY'S INDIANS WIN GAME WITH CHEESE-EATERS

The St. Marys Indians won their first basketball game of the season yesterday when they defeated the "Cheese Eaters" 25 to 15. The battle was staged in the Y. M. C. A. gym.

Gunder and Neidig were the chief point getters for the Indians, Gunder dropping in three field goals and Neidig being credited with two field goals and two free throws. Gillis and Kerr were the leading men for the "Cheese Eaters."

Industrial League Managers To Meet Thursday

Eight Teams Applying For Places In Basketball Loop; Six Entered Last Season

Size of 1926-27 Organization To Be Determined at Session in Star Auditorium; Steam Shovel Team Is Withdrawn

MANAGERS of the teams that expect to enter the Marion Industrial Basketball League during the coming season will meet at 7 o'clock, Thursday night, in The Star Auditorium.

Organization will be effected and plans for the season of 1926-27 will be discussed by those in attendance at the meeting. A schedule for the winter will probably be prepared.

Eight teams have made application to enter the league this season but it was announced today that only six teams may be accommodated in the association as in previous years.

The Marion Steam Shovel Co. will not join the Industrial League this winter, Francis Bacon, personnel director of the company, said today. The company withdrew from the association following the organization of a departmental league.

Railway Service won the championship of the industrial league here last basketball season. The league games were played on Thursday night of each week and strong rivalry existed. The clubs were evenly matched and the season ended with all entries displaying a fast brand of ball.

CLARKE RESIGNS FROM PIRATES

Club Directors Meet Thursday To Consider Vice President's Action

Pittsburgh, Oct. 27—The last rumblings of the flareup in the ranks of the Pittsburgh Pirates last season, which many fans believe cost them the pennant, were heard here today as a meeting of the club directors was called for tomorrow afternoon to consider the resignation of Fred Clarke, central figure in the controversy.

Clarke mailed his resignation as assistant manager, vice president and director, to President Barney Dreyfuss, from his home in Winfield, Kans. As Dreyfuss is the major stockholder, the meeting of the board of directors to accept the resignation was considered as a mere formality.

Clarke was the sixth member of the Pirates to leave the club since the club dissension came to the surface when three veteran players openly resented Clark's instructions from the bench, which they claimed often conflicted with orders from Manager "Bill" McKechnie. The others to go were McKechnie, Carey, Carson Bigbee, Babe Adams, and Stuffy McInnis.

MIDWAY LUNCH TO HAVE TEAM

Proprietor Announces Basketball Will Replace Bowling

The Midway Lunch will have an independent basketball team this season, George Paulsom, proprietor of the Midway, announced today.

Although the team has not yet been completely organized and no schedule has been arranged, it is definitely decided that the Midways will appear on the basketball court this winter.

With plans for the organization of a basketball team under way, Paulsom said today that the Midway will not have a bowling team this year. In previous years the Midway has been represented by a bowling team and has had no basketball squad.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

Reading, Pa.—Erwin Bigge, California, fought an eight-round draw with Tommy Cooney, of Atlantic City; Jimmy McAllister, Reading, knocked out Wild Bill Fleming, Philadelphia, six rounds; Terence O'Moore, of Ireland, knocked out Stanley Lis, New York, second round.

Boston—Red Chapman, of Boston, won decision over Steve Smith, of Pridegport, Conn., 10 rounds.

Worcester, Mass.—Pete Zivic, of Pittsburgh, won decision over Johnny Vacca, of Brighton, 10 rounds.

Portland, Maine — Harry "Kid" Brown, of Philadelphia, won by technical knockout over Johnny McIntyre, of Glace Bay, N. S., in the eighth round. Bobby Jones, of Portland, knocked out K. O. Phil Tradiff of Berlin, N. H., in the fifth round.

Los Angeles—Fidel La Barba, flyweight champion, drew with Young Nationalista, of the Philippines, 10 rounds. The title was not at stake.

DUGAN'S OUTFIT, DRUG TEAM SCORE WINS AT Y. M. C. A.

Shriner and Steinmetz Rank Highest with 199 and 198 Scores

Jim Dugan's Clothiers and Bradley Drugs were winners in the Y. M. C. A. National Bowling League matches last night at the association alleys. Each won two games.

Dugan's men took the first and third games of their match with Smart & Waddell but were defeated in the second game by 11 points. When the match ended Dugans were leading with a margin of 140 points.

Bradley Drugs won the first and third games in their match with Bentz Tires but met defeat by only seven points in the second game. Bradleys led with a majority of 152 points at the end of the match.

High scorer for Dugans in a single game was Shriner, who bowled 199. Steinmetz led Smart & Waddell with 198 points in a single game and was leading scorer in the three game total with 528. A. Baldauf was high scorer for Bradleys with 208 points while Bentz's high man was M. A. Burnett, who bowled 234. Burnett's three game total was 571 points.

LORAIN HAS SLIM LEAD

Lorain, Oct. 27—Lorain High School's grid machine still continues to top the Little Big Seven standings with three victories and one tie in four games. Lorain and Norwalk are the only unbeaten teams in the circuit. The Lorain team will play the Youngstown Rayen outfit here Saturday.

WOOSTER CAPT. LIKES PONIES

Wooster, Oct. 27—Henry "Hank" Critchfield, captain and center on the Wooster College football team this season, next to playing football, would rather "watch the ponies" than eat. His father, Judge Lyman R. Critchfield of Wooster, owned Peter Wooster and Pircila Hopeful, racers well known on Ohio tracks.

TRIS, TY COBB NOT AFTER BALL CLUB

Atlanta, Oct. 27—The report that Ty Cobb, an Atlanta capitalist, and Tris Speaker are negotiating for the purchase of the Atlanta baseball club and Spiller field, has been branded as "absolutely untrue" by Bell Jackson Spiller, present owner.

"Why—I haven't even seen Ty Cobb for two years", declared Mr. Spiller. "Ty Cobb has not approached me for the matter, and except for this untrue report no one has ever told me that he was thinking of approaching me."

COMES BACK TO MAJORS AS BOSS OF PIRATE CREW

Owen (Donie) Bush

The prediction was made when Donie Bush was released as manager of the Washington Senators in the fall of 1923 after lifting the Griffith team from sixth to fourth place in the standing. That he would be back at the helm of another big league team before long. He spent two years as manager of Indianapolis in the American Association and now is back in the Pittsburgh Pirates, to succeed Bill majors, this time as pilot of the McKechnie deposed chieftain of the 1925 world champions.

K. C. ATHLETES TO ORGANIZE TEAMS, MEMBERS DECIDE

Council Will Have Bowling, Cage, Volleyball Baseball

Marion Council, No. 671, Knights of Columbus, will be represented in basketball, bowling, indoor baseball and volleyball circles this winter, according to plans outlined at group meetings of members of the council last night following the regular lodge meeting.

Preliminary organization plans were taken up and representatives of two groups appointed on the Athletic Committee.

Francis Norris was appointed to represent the bowling group on the committee and Francis Korte was named to represent the cage group.

The council will be represented by two or three bowling teams, according to plans made last night. In addition to rolling in local leagues the bowling group is planning to schedule a number of contests with out-of-town teams.

Cage Feature

Basketball is expected to be the feature of the council's athletic activities. In addition to playing a large number of games with local teams this organization is arranging to schedule contests with some of the best semi-pro teams in the state.

Among the cage luminaries who took part in the discussion last night were "Scoop" and Nelson Irvin, Francis Korte, Jerry Blocksom, Thomas Andrews, Bob O'Connell and Kruskamp. A number of other men, who starred with St. Mary's basketball teams in recent years, are also expected to turn out for the team.

To Issue Challenges

Challenges will be issued shortly to semi-pro teams throughout the state, C. E. Silva, director of council athletics, announced today.

Bowling and cage activities will get under way this week. It is expected that the volleyball and indoor baseball groups will begin to function next week.

A meeting next week, the date of which has not been set, has been called to further plans for the council's program of winter athletic activities.

Director Silva announced today that the council's various teams are looking for local matches to start the season. Challenges, he said, should be sent to him or to the men elected on the athletic committee.

St. Louis College in Hawaii will spend more than $1,000,000 in new buildings.

STAR QUINTET TO ORGANIZE THURSDAY

To Arrange For Practice Sessions And Winter Schedule Of Games

The organization meeting of the Marion Star basketball quintet will be held at the Star office Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Arrangements will be made at the time for a series of practice sessions in preparation for the winter's schedule of games.

Last season the Star outfit played independent ball, appearing locally in a number of preliminary tilts. In addition to these games, the team will likely play an out-of-town schedule of games during the coming season.

TEX RICKARD DOUBTS IF DEMPSEY WILL BOX AGAIN

New York, Oct. 27—Some doubt was expressed by Tex Rickard today, just prior to a luncheon engagement with Jack Dempsey, as to whether the former heavyweight champion really intended to attempt a comeback next summer. He intimated that Dempsey, independently rich, was wavering between distaste for the annoyances of training and a desire to recoup his wounded vanity over his loss of the title to Gene Tunney.

"Dempsey still is young and can make plenty of money next summer because of his undoubted drawing power," Rickard said.

"However, he has all the money he needs and I'm a bit afraid he may decide the whole thing is too much trouble. That decision rests with him."

SHOVEL COMPANY ORGANIZES CAGE LEAGUE IN SHOP

Definite Schedule To Be Announced in Near Future

The Marion Steam Shovel Departmental Basketball League was organized last night during a meeting of the managers of the various departments of the company.

Plans for the first season of the new league were discussed. A definite schedule will be announced in the near future.

All games of the department league will be played in the new Steam Shovel gymnasium which is expected to be completed by Nov. 15. At least eight

What You Find

To try Luckies for a change is to smoke them always from choice. For a trial reveals their extra goodness.

First, they are made of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and perfectly blended—and something more.

In addition, a costly process—toasting—gives them unique superiorities which win you to higher standards of enjoyment.

A trial of Luckies offers you:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

To learn how Luckies differ from other cigarettes, smoke them for a while. Learn why millions prefer them.

Then I told Nibs where I found it, and before he could do anything the Lost Bag of Tripe paisted him one in the eye and was half ways out of the hole into the alley when Peanuts grabbed his feet and pulled him back, and as soon as he got on his feet Nibs made a pass at him and he ducked and paisted Nibs another one and made a run for the door and got to it just as my aunt opened it. And he hit her so hard they had turned over twice before they stopped and then the Lost Bag of Tripe ran the whole length of her getting away. I never did see her so mad, and she blamed me for it, and kept jawing me till I sot down to brenkfast. Then my father astcd me how it happened and when I told him he asted me what I had done with the milk and when I said I put it away he told me to go and throw it out. I told him it was strained, but he told me not to stop to argue, so I sot it out on the back step for Jubilee and when I started for school his sides were sticking out.

I played checkers with my grandfather till he got mad and then I went to bed. There wasn't any sense throwing the milk away.

Daily Bedtime Story

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

Jimmie Wibblewobble, the duck boy, waddled very fast over to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bunglow one day.

"Good morning, Jimmie," greeted the old rabbit gentleman, as he hopped out on the front steps, twinkling his pink nose. "You are going early to school this morning," went on Mr. Longears.

"Quackity ack ock!" said Jimmie.

"What's that?" asked Uncle Wiggily, for the boy duck was excited, and mumbled his words so queerly, that the bunny could not understand him. "What did you say, Jimmie?"

"Ock ack quackity!" spluttered Jimmie.

"I guess you must be playing some game!" laughed the rabbit uncle. "But as I don't know the rules, Jimmie, I can't play it with you. However, don't be late for school! The Lady Mouse teacher doesn't like her pupils to come late."

Then Jimmie seemed to find his voice for he quacked:

"I'm not going to school, Uncle Wiggily! At least not right away. I'm running to get Dr. Possum!"

"Dr. Possum!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "Who is ill at your house, Jimmie? I know it can't be you, for you look fine."

"Oh, I'm all right!" answered the boy duck. "It's my sister, Lulu."

"What's the matter with Lulu?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"She has lost her quack!" answered Jimmie.

"Ho! Ho! Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "You are teasing me! The idea of a little duck girl losing her quack! I guess you mean she has lost the penny I gave her last week to buy a lollypop, Jimmie. Lulu lost her penny down a crack—she didn't lose her quack!"

"Oh, yes she did, Uncle Wiggily!" exclaimed Jimmie. "Excuse me for seeming to contradict you," he went on politely, "but Lulu has lost her quack, and I'm going to get Dr. Possum to see if he can make her a new one!"

"Oh, dear, this is very sad and quite too bad!" said the rabbit gentleman. "Very well, Jimmie, you waddle along after the doctor and I will go to your house to see what I can do."

When Uncle Wiggily reached the pen where the ducks lived, he found every one much excited. Alice, the other duck girl, was hurrying here and there, trying to help her mother, who was quacking away at a great rate. Mr. Wibblewobble was scurrying around so fast in the yard that a lot of his feathers were flying out. As for Lulu, she sat in an easy chair, with some bed quilts wrapped around her.

"What is this I hear about you, Lulu?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Jimmie said you have lost your quack—have you?"

Lulu opened her beak, but only some whispering sounds came out. Try as she did, she could not speak, or quack, which is a duck's way of talking.

"Dear me! It's true! Lulu has lost her quack!" said Uncle Wiggily, and he knew it was very serious. For when a duck girl loses her quack it's as sad as if a little puppy dog lost his bark.

"Where did you lose it, Lulu?" asked the bunny. "I'll go look and see if I can find it?"

All Lulu could do was to siss and whisper. Not a quack could she make. But her mother said for her:

"Lulu must have lost her quack down at the pond."

"She and I were sliding on the thin ice last night," quacked Alice.

"I'll go to the pond and look!" offered the bunny. But as he was leaving in came Dr. Possum and Jimmie, and as soon as the animal doctor looked at

"I'm running to get Dr. Possum!"

Lulu, listened to her breathing and had heard her try to talk, he said, said Dr. Possum:

"Pooh! She hasn't lost her quack! She has just caught cold and her throat is swelled and she is so hoarse she can't quack! I'll soon fix her!" So Dr. Possum gave Lulu some medicine that soothed her sore throat and the next day she could quack as well and as loudly as ever.

"I'm very glad," said Uncle Wiggily when he heard about it. "But I might have had an adventure if I had looked for Lulu's quack that wasn't lost. However, perhaps, it is best as it is." And so it was, I think. Anyhow, if the June Bug doesn't sit down on the fly paper instead of reading it as he should, properly, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's roast potatoes.

PENN - ILLINOIS GAME SATURDAY PROMISES MUCH

Eastern Team Recalls Beating from "Red" Grange Last Year

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

[illegible] Oct. 27—Since [illegible] will [illegible] men, sometimes it [illegible] only that one of a portion [illegible] the meeting between [illegible] at Illinois on Saturday [illegible] peak too. It is the [illegible] understanding that the young [illegible] to be very firm with each [illegible]

[illegible] aired by Bob Zuppke, [illegible] sportsmanship on Pennsylvania wearing elbow pads that resemble a football and to paint the ball white to game have done the same only no good. Pennsylvania Mr. Zuppke if he talked [illegible] Urbana less personal. like that [illegible] Mr. Zuppke will talk doesn't care who likes it, if

As a matter of fact, the two seasons' [illegible] intersectional relationship [illegible] Pennsylvania and Illinois hardly as cordial as it might For one thing, Pennsylvania enthuse over that terrible beating took last year when it thought it was on its way to a championship. For her, Zuppke didn't entrench the idea [illegible] failed to protect the field [illegible] rain until he mentioned the weight.

For a third, the boys down in Philadelphia achieved the notion that Zuppke is rubbing it a bit when he rushed substitutes to one ever heard of after Pennsylvania had been thoroughly whipped. Anyhow, Zuppke made much of the lack of covering for the field in discussing the point with his players. This probably was more psychological raw meat. But, as matters turned out, it was hardly needed. Pennsylvania didn't spread its defense enough to hamper Grange and its end committed themselves too readily when they came charging in. As a result, Grange had a large day and Pennsylvania had a large headache.

BEGIN BASEBALL PRACTICE

Madison, Oct. 27—Strangely indeed does the sound of the crack of a bat mingle with the more appropriate thud of a football at the University of Wisconsin. Cries of "Atta boy, George!" "You have [illegible] big one left!" and "Strike three, batter out!" pierce the air almost as often as the staccato "2-16-14!" of the quarterback, for fall baseball practice at the state university has been in progress for several weeks.

COOPER TO BOX DUNDEE

New York, Oct. 27—"Farmer" Joe Cooper, welterweight, has been signed to meet Joe Dundee of Baltimore at Madison Square Garden on Nov. 13. Cooper trains for his bouts in the harness tracks and is looked upon as a likely welterweight contender.

ELMER LAYDEN MARRIED

CUP CHALLENGE ARRIVES

New York Oct. 27—The first challenge for the Davis Cup for the 1927 season has arrived. It is from the Yugoslav Tennis association and specifies that Yugoslavia will play in the European zone. It is the first time Yugoslavia has entered Davis Cup play.

MALONEY SIGNS

New York, Oct. 27—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight and the rival of Jack Sharkey who defeated Harry Wills, has signed a contract to appear in three fights in the Garden this winter, according to Jess McMahon, Wills' matchmaker.

FRANCIS SUTTLES PAYS FINE AND IS RELEASED

Francis Suttles, age 22, of 570 Wilson ave., was fined $50 and costs on a charge of intoxication by the true Firsby afternoon and was released from the county jail where he had been held since his arrest Sunday night. Suttles' automobile ran into the ditch and upset along the Prospect road according to accounts filed with police. Proof that he was driving the car was lacking, however, and the original charge of driving while intoxicated was withdrawn.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

With the retail price of fresh eggs standing at 50 and 51 cents a dozen, few were seen in meat markets and provision houses today in this city.

Farm price of eggs at Marion poultry houses took another boost yesterday afternoon when the quotation reached the 45-cent mark for a dozen. Quotations on eggs today were five cents higher than those named five days ago, averaging a cent a day increase.

Further increases are expected before the end of the week, it was said today.

Butter Fat Up

Few changes were noted in Marion vegetable markets today. A few hothouse tomatoes, selling at 40 cents a pound, were found and a greater supply is expected to be on sale Thursday. A small quantity of home grown tomatoes were still on display.

INDUSTRIAL STOCKS REACH HIGHER LEVEL

Stimulus Furnished by Favorable News from Well-Known Corporations

New York, Oct. 27—Industrial stocks received an excellent stimulus to higher prices today through the publication of the third quarterly earnings of the Steel and General Motors Corporation, and railroad stocks from the flattering September earnings and the boosting of Pennsylvania Railroad's dividend to 7 from 6 per cent.

With the exception of a few of the stocks most directly concerned or affected by these developments, the market was exceedingly slow to respond. So slow, indeed, that professional traders, departing of recuperative power, trained on the heavy guns of short selling and threatened for a time to start a new and violent reactionary movement. Concentrating on the motor shares in the early period, these professionals aided by further pool liquidation and "distress selling," wielded the big stick heavy over the speculative industrial stocks.

The first 33 of the class one railroads to report September earnings had total net operating income of $73,651,000 against $69,494,000 in the same month last year, a gain of six per cent.

Combined with Norfolk & Western's $3 extra dividend and Pennsylvania's increase of the common dividend, this made a very favorable setting for speculation in the railroad stocks. The principal strength of the market was concentrated here, with Pennsylvania, Atchison, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio and various western and mid western rails being favored.

BINDLEY GROCERY CO. TO CONSTRUCT NEW GARAGE

Structure of Cement and Steel To Be Built Adjoining Warehouse

Plans for construction of a garage of cement and steel, to measure 75 by 90 feet, have been announced by the Bindley Grocery Co., N. State-st, and work of tearing down the frame structure which occupies the ground where the garage will be built at the rear of the company's place of business began today. The construction contract has been let to John Baldwin & Sons and this firm is also in charge of dismantling the old building.

The new garage, which is to be of modern, fireproof design, will be used for storing the Bindley Co.'s fleet of seven delivery trucks and seven salesmen's cars.

The old structure was known years ago as the Big Four House, and was a combination saloon and hotel which did a prosperous business when the two main local railway stations were located along the Big Four and Erie tracks east of State-st. After the Union Station was built and the old passenger depots abandoned the N. State-st district, formerly one of the most thriving in the community, was dealt a severe blow and gradually long established places of business passed out of existence. The Big Four House was one of this number. During recent years the building has been used by the Bindley Co. for storage purposes.

GILA MONSTER AND SAND TURTLE ON DISPLAY HERE

Reptiles Are Property of C. A. Owens; Exhibited at Police Headquarters

A gila monster and a sand turtle, products of the Arizona desert, on display at the quarters of the Marion police department, today attracted the attention of numerous visitors at the municipal offices. The reptiles are the property of C. A. Owens, secretary and vice president of the Osgood Co., who obtained possession of them during a trip to Arizona several months ago.

The gila monster, encased in a small wire cage, has been placed in east window of police headquarters, where it will be on display for several days. Its diet, according to statements of police officials, consists of one egg a week. The turle resembles the type found in this locality but is provided with an additional spade shaped appendage which it uses to burrow into the sand when at its native abiding place in the desert.

CABINS ARE TO BE ERECTED AT BOY SCOUT CAMP

Decision Reached at Meeting of Harding Area Council at Y. M. C. A.

A number of cabins will be erected on the site of the Owens Boy Scout Camp, south of Marion, in the near future, according to plans completed last night at a meeting of the Harding Area Council of the Boy Scouts, in the office of Scout Executive W. C. Brown.

It has not yet been decided how many cabins will be built at the camp for accomodation to the Boy Scout troops.

A campaign for scout matters for the Harding Area Council was also launched last night through members of the organization. Each member of the council is requested to present a list of names of persons whom they believe would be suitable for the positions of scout masters. When a number of men are selected a school of instruction for scoutmasters will be conducted by the scout executive here.

Conference Report

Scout Executive W. C. Brown gave a brief account of the National Boy Scout Conference, held recently at Hot Springs, Ark., pointing out facts developed at the conference which may be of aid in work in this district.

At present, it was said, there are more than 3,000 boys of scout age in the counties included in the Harding Area. It is expected that at least one half of this number will belong to the scout organization within the next few months.

Winter Camp

A winter camp at Owens was authorized by members of the council last night. A number of scouts will make use of the camp during the Christmas vacation period.

A "court of honor" presided over by Chairman John H. Clark, for the purpose of awarding merits to scouts, will be held this winter, according to plans completed at the meeting last night.

It was also announced that a motion picture by local boys, depicting the development of the youth under the influence of scout training, would be filmed soon.

The next regular meeting of the Harding Aerie Council of Boy Scouts to be held the last week in November, will be a "constitutional meeting." At this gathering, the charter of the council will be officially presented.

YOUTHS ARRESTED AFTER AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Charles Niggemeyer of 800 Davids-st and Clifford Nelson of 784 Nelson-st 15 year-old High school boys, were arrested on E. Center st about 4:30 Tuesday afternoon after the automobile in which they were riding is said to have crashed into the rear end of another car. The boys were taken to police court and released on their promise to appear today on a charge of reckless driving. It is likely that they will be transferred to the custody of the juvenile court. The automobile, owned by young Niggemeyer's parents, was being driven by Nelson, according to police reports.

MORGAN AND GELBAUGH LEADING IN "Y" CONTEST

Roger Morgan and Freddy Gelbaugh are leading all contestants in the boys' department in the membership drive of the Y. M. C. A. The first youth has turned in names of seven new members while "Freddy" has accounted for five.

When the drive began the boys' department of the local Y. M. C. A. had only 315 members. At present 340 are enrolled. Competition is now centered on detecting the two leaders of the campaign and establishing a new record.

Philanthropist Plans to Rid New York of its Slums

Millionaire Proposes "Old Law" Tenements Be Demolished and Replaced

New York, Oct. 27—August Heckscher, millionaire, philanthropist, is planning to rid New York of its slum district on the lower east side. Proposals whereby the "old law" tenement would be demolished, to be replaced by model apartment buildings surrounded by public parks and playgrounds, have been furnished to Mayor Walker by Heckscher. The philanthropist has just returned from a tour of Europe, where he was Mayor Walker's "special emissary" to study methods now prevailing in Europe for proper housing relief in congested districts.

Heckscher's plan would cost in the neighborhood of $500,000,000, the sponsor announces, but Heckscher is confident there would be no trouble financing the proposal. He thinks 500 of New York's wealthiest men could be found who would promise a contribution of $100,000 each for five years, which would mean a purse of $250,000,00 to form the nucleus of investment necessary for the colossal project.

In this connection, it is understood by associates of Heckscher that he is willing to donate close to $100,000,000 of his personal fortune toward the undertaking.

According to Heckscher's plan, the city and the state would be asked to add $250,000,000 to the fund of a like amount collected from individual philanthropists.

Present lower east side dwellers, Heckscher says, could be housed by the city in temporary quarters while their homes are being razed and rebuilt. The entire project, according to Heckscher, could be completed in from 10 to 15 years and it would do away with what he considers New York's most immediate problem. City planning, Heckscher says, could then commence, but

Heckscher found that the London slums are fast disappearing. He states that last year $34,000,000 was appropriated for the work of tearing down disease-breeding hovels and the erection of sanitary, fireproof tenements.

Heckscher reports that even in poverty stricken Germany the problem of better housing for the poor is recognized as one that demands immediate and constant attention. Berlin raised a fund of $40,000,000 for that purpose last year, Heckscher states, and he believes that if London can raise $34,000,00 and Berlin $40,000,000, prosperous New York should be able to raise $500,000,000.

Present plans would mean the erection of five-story "walk-up" buildings, but if a German invention which Heckscher saw in use in Hamburg and Berlin, where he investigated it, can be perfected the buildings could be ten

MANY MARION TEACHERS TO ATTEND STATE MEET

Central Ohio Assembly Session Will Be Held in Columbus Nov. 5-6

Many Marion teachers are planning to be in attendance at the annual meeting of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association meeting which will be held in Columbus, Nov. 5 and 6. The meeting is to be one of the largest educational conferences ever held in America, an attendance of 9,000 teachers being expected. Reduced railroad rates are being given teachers who present certificates secured from the executive secretary.

Such noted speakers as Payson Smith of Massachusetts; Dr. Frank N. Freeman of University of Chicago; Dr. Carleton Washburn, superintendent of Winnetka, Ill. Schools; Dr. Earnest Horn of Iowa University; Miss Emily Griffith of Denver Opportunity School; Dr. O. T. Corson and Dr. W. O. Thompson are scheduled to address the convention.

Other special features of interest to teachers will be an opportunity to visit Columbus Schools early Friday morning. Friday afternoon departmental meetings are arranged for teachers of every grade and subject.

On Friday night the distinguished violinist, Mme. Gray-Lhevinne is to give a concert before the formal address is given by Dr. W. O. Thompson.

Officers of the association are Supt. Paul C. Stetson, Dayton, president; Supt. Harris V. Bear, Miamisburg, vice president; Chas. W. Cookson, Urbana, C. A. Waltz, Greenville, and G. A. Morris, Dayton, executive committee; George C. Dietrich, Piqua, executive secretary.

DAIRY SECOND TO MOTORCAR IN DEVELOPMENT

Head of Isaly Company Reviews Progress in Handling of Milk

Aside from the production of automobiles, no other single industry has developed so remarkably in the last few decades as dairy business, says Charles H. Isaly, head of the largest dairy organization in the Marion district, in reviewing progress and expansion during the recent years.

This has been true not only nationally and throughout Ohio, but in Marion County, farmers everywhere turning their attention and centering their interests in this highly profitable branch of agriculture.

"Agriculture has suffered severely from the effects of war disruption and inflation and many of its branches are still experiencing extreme difficulty in operating at a profit. The first to recover and get back on a stable basis have been the farmers who are engaged chiefly in dairy production," Mr. Isaly says. This circumstance, he says, is one of the most convincing proofs that no other department of the agricultural industry has advantages equal to those of dairy farming.

Remarkable Growth

Remarkable growth of the dairy business has been due largely to the numerous and extensive improvements that have been effected in all of its phases, from the time milk is drawn from its original source to the marketing stage. Development of absolute sanitation has played an important part by giving the public assurance of pure, rich products and thereby adding tremendously to market demand.

"Reputable, conscientious milk dealers have always employed every means to deliver clean, wholesome products even when there were no stringent laws, such as we have today, providing rigid inspection and other safeguards," Mr. Isaly says. "Official regulations and laws are not needed for that class of dairy operators now, but nevertheless, all in the business agree that this, government control is a necessity and a good thing."

Even the dairymen who operated with extreme care years ago had service that was regarded as almost perfect at that time did not maintain standards that came anywhere near those of the present time, Mr. Isaly states. Conditions that were regarded as absolutely sanitary and beyond criticism 25 years ago are prohibited in the present system of operation and management.

Naturally, the public has been the chief beneficiary from these improvements, but as the public has profited, so has the business itself. Elevation of the standards of milk production and marketing has been the chief factor in the vast increase in the number of milk consumers throughout the country.

Along with this improvement in sanitation and purity of products, there has been development of increased efficiency which has eliminated waste and consequently increased profits and kept down prices. There is very little waste in the modern system of dairy operation, Mr. Isaly says.

Losses Frequent

In former years, losses were frequently heavy during those seasons of the year when the output of milk is at its peak and supply exceeds the demand. Under the present system the surplus accumulated during the peak period is condensed and sold to candy makers, bakers and heads of other lines of business which use condensed milk.

Operation of ice cream plants in connection with dairies has also been an extremely valuable aid in solving the problem. Market for ice cream is greatest during the season of the year when milk production is at its highest ebb and this disposes of a large part of what would otherwise be an unused surplus.

Pasteurization

Pasteurization of milk, which was perfected in 1898, has had much to do with bringing about the great increase in the sale of dairy products. The United States Department of Agriculture estimates that the per capita use of fluid milk has gained from 24 gallons per year in 1900 to 43 in 1920 and nearly 60 in 1926. The average man, woman and child used two and one-fourth times as much milk last year as in 1909 and 27 per cent more than in 1920.

Remarkable development of dairy equipment has virtually sounded the death knell of the old-time "country butter," a survey of the situation shows. Practically the only country butter now made is that produced on farms located far from centers of population which are out of touch with dairy plants. Creamery butter has eliminated competition almost entirely because of its thorough purity and uniform flavor and freshness.

HERD QUICKLY TURNED INTO MONEY-MAKER

Investigation Shows That Dairy Cattle May Be Divided into Three Classes

Careful investigation shows that the dairy cattle of the United States may be roughly divided into three classes with about one-third of the country's cattle in each class. The poorest class does not pay for its keep, the next grade returns a very small profit and the third best carries the other two-thirds on its back, so to speak. The average production of milk per cow in this country is given as 3716 lbs. and the butterfat production as 160 lbs. per year. Only about one-third of the cows are really profitable.

A number of cows in western Ohio show a higher production, but in many cases the herd average is no higher. The average production for the entire State is only 4,000 lbs. of milk, and 160 lbs. of butterfat, according to figures just received from Ohio State University.

According to cost accounts kept in Medina County from 1920 to 1924, a cow must give at least 6700 lbs. of 3.5% milk, or its equivalent, to pay for the cost of production, allowing 30 cents an hour for labor, and current prices for feed and milk sold. If dairy cows are to make any real profit they must, therefore, produce more than this.

The herd of John Thornville, Perry County, Ohio, is the result of using purebred dairy sires for more than a generation. This herd of twelve cows, all in the cow testing association for a year, produced an average of 7,555 lbs. of milk and 435 lbs. of butterfat.

Through the co-operation of the Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey and Ayrshire Cattle Clubs, several cars of registered dairy bulls will be carried on the Better Bull Special. These bulls are being selected and inspected by the breed association representatives.

Man a man's bank balance would be on the wrong side if his creditors had their due.

"Better Bull" Special Designed to Promote Dairying

TOURING STATE IN INTEREST OF OHIO BREEDERS

Operated In Cooperation with Ohio State University and Business Bodies

The purpose of bringing better cattle to Western Ohio and improving general dairy conditions, the "Better Bull Special" is being operated from Marion and Western Ohio during the next few days over the Erie Railroad.

The special, which is being operated in connection with Ohio State University, four state and national dairy breeders associations, county agricultural agents, business men, and other interested organizations, started on its trip through Western Ohio Monday, using the Erie yards here on the first stop, Wren, O.

The train is made up of seven cars and carries a number of carefully selected Guernsey, Holstein, Ayrshire and Jersey bulls. The bulls are all registered and have been selected by the Ohio Guernsey Breeders Association, the Ohio Jersey Breeders Association, and the Ohio Holstein Breeders Association.

Registered Bulls

Four of the seven cars of the special are loaded with registered dairy bulls. One car is fitted up with a feeding and breeding exhibit by Ohio State University, a car for free motion pictures and lectures is attached, and a flat car for out-of-door pictures and lectures is included.

From 9:30 until noon every day of the scheduled trip, the cars are open for inspection. At 1:30 every afternoon, representatives of the Erie Railroad give an address on "The Purpose of the Better Bull Special," followed by speeches by representatives of Ohio State University and the breed associations.

Subjects chosen by the latter men are "The Purebred Dairy Sire a Necessity in Economic Dairying" and "Some qualities of a Good Dairy Ration."

Motion Pictures

A good bull is the secret of profitable dairying, all prominent dairymen claim. The special carries bulls which will probably be sold on the trip, if farmers wish to make a purchase.

Dairymen, farmers, and other interested parties are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the special in their city or community and large crowds are expected at every stop.

The train visits 10 stations along the route, the journey coming to an end on Thursday, Nov. 4, at Dayton.

Saturday, Oct. 30, is the date set for the visit in the local yards, the special coming here from Galion, where the bulls will be exhibited Friday.

H. H. Berringer, Francis Warner, and Harvey Zachman were appointed sometime ago to make arrangements for the stop of the special in this city. The financial committee appointed a few weeks ago to arrange for financing the train is comprised of Charles A. Isaly, W. H. Holverstott, and C. W. Hamilton.

Committees

Executive committees, comprised of men interested in the improvement of dairy conditions in the various districts, have been appointed in the various villages and cities to assist in the display in their community.

Men in charge of the Better Bull Special for the Erie Railroad are H. B. Rogers, chief agricultural agent of the lines, and T. M. Palmer, agricultural agent.

Ohio State men in charge include Prof. C. L. Blackman, Prof. S. M. Salisbury, and Prof. Ivan McKellip.

Those in Charge

H. E. Dennison, fieldman, represents the American Jersey Cattle Club; Floyd S. Barlow, field secretary, heads the arrangements of the Ohio Guernsey Breeders Association, Inc.; I. D. Hadley, field secretary, represents the interests of the Ohio Friesian Association, and C. T. Conklin, secretary, is in charge of the plans of the Ayrshire Breeders Association. General committee chairmen in the various districts are as follows:

Dan Meyers, Wren; Harry B. Cowan, Ohio City; W. W. Rider, Spencerville; Fred Kirts, Alger; I. C. Zuspan, Richwood; C. A. Squire, Urbana; L. J. Spain, North Lewisburg; H. H. Berringer of Prospect, Marion; O. L. Cunningham, Dayton, and H. F. Eichorn, Galion.

CITY MILK CODE PROTECTION TO ALL CONSUMERS

Ordinance Enacted Last Year Has Been Rigidly Enforced Since Passage

Protection for Marion folk against dirty milk as near 100 per cent effective as is possible through the operation of a modern inspection and testing system is provided in the ordinance adopted by the City Council on November 23, 1925 prescribing rules and regulations for all dairies supplying the local market and placing them under the supervision of the Board of Health.

The ordinance, which in most details is the one in effect at Columbus, has been rigidly enforced since it became effective a month after enactment and through willing cooperation on the part of practically all dairy owners and milk producers in the territory, has proven in every way satisfactory.

Contents of Set

The contents of the ordinance, generally referred to as the City milk code are summarized briefly in the municipal records as "Providing conditions pertaining to the keeping of cows, handling and sale of milk, cream, ice cream, skimmed milk and butter milk, and providing a penalty for violations."

Under the provisions of the code, no person or firm in the City of Marion or the territory surrounding it is allowed to produce or sell dairy products here without first obtaining a permit from the food inspector. Enforcement of the code is in the hands of Dr. J. T. Gruber, who was appointed head of the municipal department of milk and meat inspection several months before the ordinance was passed. Prior to the functioning of the new code, milk dealers and producers were not required to obtain permits.

A fee of $1 is charged for each permit, not for the purpose of raising revenue, but chiefly to enable the inspector to keep an accurate and complete record of dealers and producers.

Inspection

No permit is granted until the inspector has first thoroughly surveyed the equipment and plant of the applicant and is satisfied that all sanitary requirements are complied with.

The inspector has full and absolute authority to revoke the dealer's right to market dairy products whenever there is evidence of the code having been violated.

Thorough cleanliness must be maintained in stables where cows are housed or milked. No accumulations of manure [illegible] Cows are prohibited from the cows.

Building Rules

Dairy buildings must be constructed in accordance with specifications of the code which provide that floors shall be 2 feet at least 8 feet higher than the outside surface level so that good drainage is assured. All floors shall be constructed of asphalt, concrete, brick with cement surfaces or water tight wood and must be kept in good repair at all times, with ample gutters at the sides to provide suitable drainage.

It is provided that each cow stall shall have a window measuring at least three square feet and the stall must be provided with not less than 500 square feet of air space. The windows are to be left partly open at no other means of ventilation are provided.

The rules require sanitary, well drained stable yards and prohibit allowing the cows to stand in or wade through filth or manure. Cows must be kept thoroughly clean and be provided at all times with fresh bedding. They must be given pure, dry feed absolutely free from signs of decay, mold or dust and must be watered from running streams or from wells that are not contaminated and the water from which is pumped into sanitary tanks.

Rules for Attendants

Persons engaged in milking cows, either by hand or machine, are required to cleanse their hands and the udders of the cows before milking. All receptacles are to be washed with soap and water and seams of all vessels must be cleaned with a brush. No person who has been exposed to any contagious disease is permitted to handle milk. Vested in this class of diseases are scarlet fever, diphtheria, typhoid fever, tuberculosis, and venereal ailments.

Milk must immediately be removed from the cow stable into a special room screened against flies and other insects and cooled to at least 65 degrees, where it is placed in sterilized bottles or cans. Bottling of milk while in the process of delivery is prohibited.

Milk Room

Specifications for the milk room require that it be at least 30 feet from buildings where animals are kept, that it have tight, non absorbent floors, well-drained and that the interior be painted or whitewashed. No person is permitted to offer for sale in the city milk containing more than 88 per cent of water or fluids, less than 12 per cent of milk solids, less than 3.2 per cent of butter fat, or milk from which any part of the cream has been removed. Where cream has been removed, the product must be clearly labeled "skimmed milk."

The code provides that no milk shall be marketed except that which comes from absolutely healthy cows, all of which must pass [illegible] Examinations

All cows found to be diseased on examination by the City Health Commissioner, Dr. W. J. Wesner, and others are forbidden to be kept with other cows, or to have any employees put to milking.

Rules govern all the matters of care of cows, sanitary conditions of the dairy, the frozen product must be made from milk which conforms strictly to the requirements of the code.

Violations of the code by the dairymen, guessers liable now only to a small fine or loss of their permits but to a prosecution of less than $50 nor more than $200 for each offense.

THREE BEST DAIRY BREEDS ARE SELECTED

Guthery Says Milk Cows Not Satisfactory for Beef Purposes

Holstein, Jersey, and Guernsey cattle are the best for milk purposes but are unsatisfactory for beef purposes, Lowell R. Guthery, president and general manager of the Marion Packing Co., said today.

Of these breeds the Holsteins are the most commonly known in this vicinity.

While Holsteins are noted for being great milk producers many dairymen, it is found, will add Jersey to their herds when they wish more butter fat content in the milk. Jerseys are famous as producers of milk with great butter fat content.

Probably an even number of Guernseys and Jerseys roam the fields of Marion County, both being considered among the best of dairy cattle.

On the other hand, Shorthorns, Herefords, and Aberdeen Angus, are great beef cattle but are poor milk producers, Mr. Guthery states.

Shorthorns are the most familiar of the three in this county while Herefords rank second in popularity. A great many farmers seem to have little preference between the two, both ranking about equal in their estimation as good beef cattle.

Aberdeen Angus are scarce in this vicinity. They are black in color and rank among the best in beef cattle. Their name was carried with them from Scotland to this country.

The "Better Bull Special" carries only dairy bulls, including Holstein, Jerseys, and Guernseys. All bulls are registered and are for sale to any farmer or dairyman who wishes to make a purchase.

PRODUCTION OF PURE BREDS IS MUCH HIGHER

H. W. Zachman Says His Herd Showed 33 1-3 Per Cent Increase Over Grade Record

For higher milk production, healthy stock, stronger calves and a marketable herd, raise pure bred dairy cattle. That is the opinion of H. W. Zachman, 1047 Mt. Vernon ave, for 18 years a dairy farmer.

"The last 10 years of our experience in the dairy business we have had nothing on the farm but pure bred cattle and our production has shown an increase of 33 1-3 per cent over our former records with the same size herd. The average test of the cows on the farm now show a considerable increase over that of the grade herd, again increasing our profit. We raise Holsteins and I am a great believer in that particular strain. The need, in the milk production business, however, is not for every dairyman to raise Holsteins, but the producing of pure breds. Let each man raise his favorite strain, but raise pure breds."

Mr. Zachman stated further that from experience, he had found that the pure bred cow was healthier, more content and responded more readily to production feeding.

Grade or pure bred, the cow that is given the best care will be the biggest money maker.

"In feeding dairy cattle," Zachman said, "strive for a wide variety of milk producing foods. Alfalfa is a fine rough feed, rich in protein content. We have found that the best results from alfalfa are derived with alternating it with other rough feeds. Corn fodder serves as an excellent alternate.

"Particular attention should be given the mash feeds. We find it desirable to mix rations of oats, bran, cottonseed meal and sometimes barley with our ensilage rations."

"A cow will not attain her maximum milk production unless she eats the proper amount of food. It is essential that her appetite should be kept on a keen edge the year around. We manage this with the variety of our feeds. Running water is an item of more than ordinary importance in establishing high production records and a great asset of the healthy herd."

Zachman called attention to the drop in the quality of milk that dairymen face each year, when the herd is turned into new pasture. Little has been done to combat this loss, dairymen of the old school feeling that the loss is covered up with the gain in production. With a continuous winter feeding of balanced rations the production gain is found to be immaterial. The young pasture grass has little content that serves to strengthen the milk. This lack may be furnished by a continuance of the daily mash feed without ensilage and in smaller quantities. By feeding his herd at the barn each day the year round, varying amounts according to need of the cows, Zachman feels that he is able to keep his herd more content and more easily handled.

"There is an urgent need for more wide-spread pure bred sire legislation in the dairying industry," Zachman declared, "dairymen should be required by law not only to breed their cows to pure bred sires, but also to adhere to the same strain in breeding the offspring. This system was worked out on a more elaborate scale in developing the Jersey and Guernsey breeds on the two islands bearing these names off the coast of Europe. With such legislation rigidly enforced, the next 50 years would find practically every dairy cow in the United States of practically pure bred strain, even though not registered."

WORLD'S CHAMPION FOR COWS 13 YEARS OLD

MARION MILK NO MORE THAN DAY AND HALF OLD

Fluid Must Go Through Long Process Before It Is Delivered

Milk delivered Marion consumers is never more than a day and a half old, and would not be that old were it not for the fact that in order to complete the deliveries milk-men start on their rounds at 2 o'clock in the morning, delivering milk that was fresh from the cow the morning and night before.

Before its delivery milk goes through a pasteurizing process. The cows are milked, the milked is strained, heated to a temperature to purify it, and then cooled and bottled for delivery.

Dairying was formerly a simple process, say the Marion dairies, for the milk, practically fresh from the cow was delivered Marion consumers. However with the installment of modern dairy equipment and laws for health protection the pasteurizing process has become as important a part of dairying as the actual milking itself.

In colonial days in America it used to be the fashion for a bridegroom to give his bride a set of English wall-papers as a wedding present.

POPULARITY OF GUERNSEYS INCREASING

Fine Milk and Butter Fat Records Listed by Association

BY FLOYD S. BARLOW
Field Secretary, Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association, Inc.

As compared with the other dairy breeds, Guernsey cattle are not so numerous in Ohio. They are, however, fast forging to the front. Their popularity is due largely to the rich, golden colored milk with its nutty flavor, which makes it an ideal table milk.

The Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association with offices at Wooster conducts consignment sales semi-annually. The last sale was held Oct. 14 at which time 43 females sold at an average price of $275 and five young bulls at an average of $181. These prices are indicative of the popularity of the breed.

The average production of all guernseys according to 19303 completed Advanced Registry records is 9,533.3 pounds of milk and 476.0 pounds of butter fat with an average test of 4.99. About 57 per cent of these records were made by heifers with first calf. A total of 5,300 records were made by cows five years old and over with an average of 10,718.9 pounds of milk and 529.5 pounds of butter fat. Three cows have produced more than 20,000 pounds of milk and nine have produced more than 1,000 pounds of butter fat; 182 records exceeded 16,000 pounds of milk and 159 records exceeded 800 pounds of butter fat. The largest milk record is 24,008.0 pounds and the largest butter fat record is 1112.2 pounds.

Again referring to the quality of milk, a total of 87 gold and silver medals have been offered at 13 milk and cream shows held since 1906 in connection with the National Dairy Show. 60 per cent of these were won by Guernsey milk in pure form or mixed with other milk.

Guernsey cattle originated on the Island of Guernsey in the English channel years ago. Cattle of no other breed was found there and consequently all animals are of pure blood. Many animals are imported into America every year although breeders of this country are setting standards of perfection even beyond those set by the island breeders. Animals are imported mainly to supply the ever increasing demand demand for milk to supply the discriminating house wife's table.

The Better Ball Special of the Erie Railroad operating on its line this week is calculated to give farmers of western Ohio, who are turning their thoughts to dairying more than ever before an opportunity to buy bulls which are bred for high production. The Guernsey car has in it animals of which much can be said. For instance, one animal has 11 of its nearest dams with records averaging 646 pounds of butter fat, another has 12 dams in four generations with pedigree records, the seven nearest averaging 54 pounds of butter fat. Something of this sort might be said of each of the 19 head, placed in the car at the start of the trip.

THIRTY OF 713 CATTLE TESTED ARE REACTORS

Tuberculin Tests Conducted Under Direction of Milk and Meat Inspector

Evidence of the valuable service given the people of Marion by the city's Department of Milk and Meat Inspection from the time it began functioning in March, 1925, to Oct. 1 of this year is found in a summary of his work during that time recently compiled by Dr. J. T. Gruber, the official inspector.

This report shows that in his official capacity Dr. Gruber has submitted 713 dairy cattle to tuberculin tests and that of this number 30 were found to be "reactors" and were eliminated from the herds. Thirty other cows have been barred from dairy production for reasons other than tubercular infection.

The head of this new municipal department has inspected and granted permits to 208 dairies and during the same period 10 permits have been revoked.

1,098 Tests

Microscopic examinations have been made of 1,098 samples of milk and grade tests have been made following examination of 3,224 samples. This grading resulted in the following classification of the samples: 29 per cent is what is known as class No. 1, 34 per cent in class No. 2, 21 per cent in class No. 3 and 16 per cent in Class No. 4.

The grading is regarded as having shown a satisfactory average, although Dr. Gruber hopes and believes that eventually all milk in Class No. 4 will be completely eliminated and accordingly the proportion in the higher classifications increased.

There have been 115 tests registering an average of four per cent of butterfat in milk samples taken from various sources. This percentage is up to requirements, the code stipulating that milk is acceptable as long as it does not fall below 3.2 per cent.

Improvement in the quality of milk being marketed here is noted especially in the results of bacteria tests. The average for the period covered by Dr. Gruber's summary shows 54,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter of pasteurized milk and as an indication of improvement he states that at present the bacteria content is running only about 30,000.

Average Acidity

The average acidity of milk sold on the Marion market has been 16 per cent, which is regarded as very satisfactory. The acidity test is made to ascertain whether the product has the proper degree of freshness and to show whether it is being kept properly cooled. A low percentage of acidity indicates that milk is in a condition which will prevent it from becoming sour sooner than it should when sold as absolutely fresh.

The dairies and milk producers under Dr. Gruber's supervision are located not only in Marion County but practically all counties adjoining it. He handles all of the work without assistance and despite the wide territory that he must cover, manages to maintain close supervision.

There are eight dairy concerns in the city of Marion, six operating pasteurizing plants and two selling non-pasteurized milk. All of these are inspected monthly.

CONTAMINATION SOURCE IS OFTEN OVERLOOKED

Milk, as it is formed in the udder of the healthy cow, is free from bacteria and, if it could be drawn without exposure to air into a closed vessel, equally free, it would remain in a sweet condition indefinitely. There is one source of contamination, however, often overlooked, before the milk reaches the outside. That is the small quantity of milk remaining in the milk duct of the teat from one milking to another. In this receptacle bacteria work their way. Here conditions for growth are so favorable that by the next milking many thousands are ready to be carried out into the milk pail by the first few streams of milk.

By milking this fore milk, as it is called, into a pail reserved for that purpose and feeding it to calves or pigs at home, this source of trouble may be avoided.

AND THE CHECK WAS GOOD AS GOLD

One of the exhibits of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at the National Dairy Show in Milwaukee, of particular interest to dairymen, was that of a check drawn on the Bank of Prosperity, and it said, "Pay to the order of the American Dairy Five Hundred Million and no 100 Dollars $500,000,000.00." It is signed "Purebred Dairy Cattle."

The best of it is that this check is as good as gold. Careful estimates, based in large part on actual records, show that the improvement in our dairy cattle due to the purebred blood that courses through their veins is worth more than half a billion dollars annually to the dairy business.

MILK AND MEAT DEPARTMENT IS HEALTH ASSET

Branch Performing Systematic and Efficience Service to Consumers

Following Dr. J. T. Gruber, city milk and meat inspector, through his customary routine of work for a day, proves interesting and convincing evidence that this new branch of Marion Department of Public Health is performing remarkably systematic and efficient service.

Every morning the head of the inspection bureau makes the rounds of local dairies and collects samples of milk from practicaly all cans brought into the city by producers. These samples are then taken to the inspector's laboratory at the city offices where thorough tests are made with the remarkabaly complete equipment that has been provided under the provisions of the milk and meat inspection code.

Tests Milk

In addition to collecting the samples of raw milk, the inspector also obtains some of the same milk after it has been pasteurized in order that the testing may be absolutely thorough and complete.

The laboratory tests show the quality of the milk in regard to percentage of butter fat, acidity, moisture, solids other than bacteria and also reveal the bacteria count.

Should any of the tests disclose unsatisfactory conditions, the inspector immediately calls on the producer or dairy owner to serve notice and ascertain the cause. The policy of the department is to remedy conditions that are not up to requirements, if possible, and not to take hasty action in the revoking of permits.

Dairies serving the Marion market are now in excellent condition generally and the operators strive at all times to conduct their business in accordance with the city's rules, Dr. Gruber says. Almost invariably they willingly cooperate in correcting conditions which do not meet with the approval of the inspector.

Equipment

Included in the laboratory equipment, all of which is of the most modern type, are an autoclave, which sterilizes all of test tubes and other containers under steam pressure, thus assuring an absolutely reliable test of the milk samples, an incubator with thermostatic control used for germinating bacteria, a device known as the centrifuge, used for ascertaining percentage of butter-fat; a microscope, a microscopic lamp, a device for counting bacteria, a lactometer, which determines the specific gravity of milk, a milk grader, a burret, used to test the acidity of milk; chemist scales, an extensive supply of test tubes, glass containers and numerous other minor articles.

The laboratory equipment is sufficient for practically all needs of the department, Dr. Gruber says, but he hopes to increase it soon with the addition of apparatus for testing butter. The inspector is somewhat handicapped in that branch of his work at present and says that a special device for this purpose is needed.

COW GIVES 118 TIMES ITS WEIGHT

An average cow gives about 118 times its weight in milk during its life. Although cows vary in size according to the breed, an average weight for a cow is 1,100 pounds while an average amount of milk given in a year is 8,640 pounds, and a lifetime of 15 years.

Cows give milk for six months out of a year, at a rate of about 48 pounds or 6 gallons per day.

Rain or Shine Milkman is Found Making Daily Rounds

Rain or shine, the morning's milk is setting on the porch awaiting the arrival of the housewife. Hubby has cream for his coffee and milk for his cereal regardless of temperature.

To wife and hubby that is just a part of the day's routine. To the milk company it is the realization of long sought ideal in efficient service. To the milk man it means crawling out at two o'clock in the morning 365 days in the year. There are no holidays in a cow's calendar.

While Marion sleeps, the trucks and wagons of the milk distribution companies prowl up and down the streets and by-ways. Drivers clamber in and out with their baskets, and supply the wants of their patrons. They find that Mrs. Jones has left a five dollar bill with an order for a pint of milk and that Mrs. Smith has finally decided to turn back all her bottles which number around two dozen and force the milkman to return for another basket.

The Brown family furnishes a little break in the day's routine by going out of town for over the week-end. Their standing order for three quart of milk and two pints of cream left morning before is sitting on the porch and has reached an advance stage of fermentation.

Milkmen are of the general opinion that sleeping is a habit, and if cultivated, will interfere with the day's work. An informal survey of the wagonmen at a local dairy plant revealed that they were getting an average of four hours sleep a night. They are summoned to work shortly after midnight and are in the habit of retiring at eight o'clock at night.

Regardless of the capers of the barometer, the milkman performs his duties. It is his business to serve and serve efficiently to attain that goal, "A Bottle of Milk on the Porch Rain or Shine."

1,500,000 HEAD OF HOLSTEINS IN AMERICA

History of Strain Related by Association Field Secretary

BY I. D. HADLEY

Field Secretary of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America

THE Holstein breed of cattle originated in Holland. Importations to this country were made as early as 1861 but the first permanent introduction of this breed was made just prior to the civil war. Importations to this county had practically ceased by 1885 and up to this time less than 9000 head had been imported. At the present time we have more than a million and a half registered in our Herd Book which goes to show something of the popularity of the breed. About 60 per cent of the pure bred dairy cattle in America are Holsteins. Holsteins have long been noted for their size, ruggedness and vigor. Their size gives them capacity to transform large quantities of the roughage that is grown on every farm, into milk and butter, thus permitting the greatest profit possible for this roughage.

It is true that Holstein milk does not test as high in butter fat as the milk of other dairy breeds but the Holstein exceeds all other breeds in the total amount of butter fat produced. For a year's production Holsteins hold all world's records for butter fat except one (that a jr. 4 year old) among the dairy breeds. 74 Holsteins in America have produced over 30,000 lbs. of milk in a year. 135 dairy cows in America have produced over 1000 lbs., or more of fat in one year and 107 of these are Holsteins. According to advanced register records 20,030 Holstein cows have finishe "long time" tests to April 1, 1924. The average yearly production being 15,603 pounds of milk and 528 lbs. of butter fat. More than half of these were tested in heifer form.

One of the greatest things that can be said for the breed is the "Great Prepotency of the Holstein bull." This is his ability to "breed on" or stamp himself on to his offspring. If he is out of high producing ancestry he is able to transmit this quality of his daughters thereby making them greater producers than their dams. In one of the most extensive experiments ever carried on in this connection purebred Holstein bulls increased the yearly production of butter fat 84 per cent in one generation, 126 per cent in two generations, 146 per cent in three generations. The general type of the animals was also improved in each generation. It is not always possible, sometimes not wise to buy all purebred cows when starting in the dairy business. It is always possible to use a good purebred sire. This will enable any one to grow into the dairy business with very limited capital. We strongly advocate this method for the average man.

TINY SCALES TELL WEIGHT OF NAME

A set of scales that can "weigh your name" is an especially interesting part of the laboratory equipment of Dr. J. T. Gruber, city milk and meat inspector. This device is of such remarkably fine construction that it will show how much the weight of a blank slip of paper is increased by writing a name on it.

MARION COUNTY DAIRY PROFITS SMALL, CLAIM

Gruber Attributes Condition to Lack of Right Class of Stock

That dairy farmers in the territory supplying the Marion market are falling far short of getting the profits that they should from their business because of failure to keep the right class of stock is the declaration of Dr. J. T. Gruber, city milk and meat inspector, who says that only 20 per cent of the cows producing milk in Marion County are of the dairy type.

"It costs just as much to feed an ordinary, scrub cow as it does a high class dairy animal and it is plain to be seen that the difference in the amount of milk produced by the two grades proves the scrub to be a poor investment," Dr. Gruber says.

Dairy farmers who complain that the earnings from their business are not satisfactory are almost invariably the ones who do not have the right type of cows, the inspector says.

400 Operators

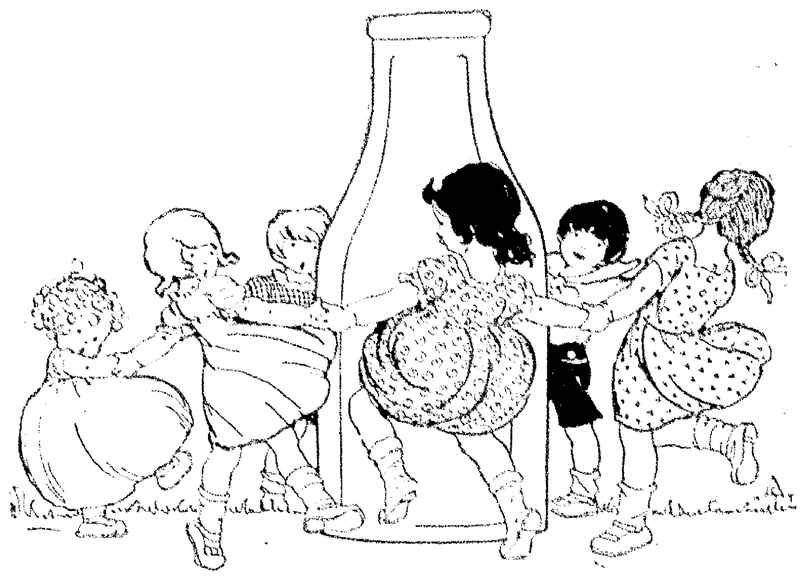
Dr. Gruber's latest report shows that there are approximately 400 dairy operators supplying the Marion market with milk and cream and he says that should the class of cows be generally improved by replacing all cheap stock with dairy cattle, 200 operators could equal the present production.

The best way to start a profitable dairy herd, Dr. Gruber says, is to purchase a bull of the right strain and develop a herd by eliminating that part of it which fails to measure up to at least the average in milk production tests. All cows which do not show a capacity for yielding a profitable output of milk should be "sent to the block," the inspector declares.

The Bull Special, Dr. Gruber believes, will do more than anthing else has ever done in Marion County to stimulate interest in the breeding of good dairy cattle.

BUYING WON'T HELP

If every farmer who milks cows or wants to milk cows went on a still hunt for the better kind, it wouldn't help the situation one bit. All the search in the world won't increase the number of good cows. Search and buy up better cows all we will, the number of good cows remains right where it is.



Our cows enjoy in summer fresh, green pastures and cool spring water—in winter the best of care and rich silage nutrition.

The result—Milk that is one hundred per cent pure, and rich in health-giving qualities! Milk that is sweet and smooth to the taste.

THE quality of milk is judged by its richness, its creaminess, and its amount of protein and sugar. Quality of milk is determined by the breed of cows which produce it and this quality varies greatly, the highest quality breed being the Jersey.

If your milk bottles shows very little cream it is a sign that the milk was either skimmed by the milkman or by the cows—(it is a well-known fact that some cows give thin milk and build up their own flesh) much to your disadvantage.

ISALY PRODUCES MILLION POUNDS BUTTER IN 1926

Output Has Increased Approximately 100,000 Pounds Yearly Since 1912

Convincing evidence of pronounced and steady growth of the dairy industry in Marion County is found in reports of a remarkable increase in the business of the Isaly Dairy Co., the largest concern of its kind in the community, during its 12 years of operation here. An outstanding feature of the 1926 record of the Isaly Co. is its production of butter, which will total 1,000,000 pounds this year, according to information coming from the manager, Charles H. Isaly.

This is the first year that butter production has reached the million-pound mark, that amazing total being the culmination of a steady increase that has been in progress ever since the Isaly family took over the plant of the Marion Pure Milk Co. back in 1914.

The butter output of the local plant has increased approximately 100,000 pounds annually during the 12 years of Isaly management, the annual production during the first year of operation having been about 100,000 pounds.

Isaly Policy

This amazing trade development has been due chiefly to the expansion policy of the Isaly Co. but some of it, the manager states, can be accounted for by the fact that dairy farming in Marion County and surrounding territory is steadily taking a more prominent place in the agricultural industry of the community. Attracted by the opportunities for profit in the dairy enterprise, which in many respects are greater and more numerous than in other branches of rural activities, more Marion County farmers are taking up dairy production every year and the prospects are that eventually the county will stand toward the top of the list in the output of milk and allied products, Mr. Isaly predicts.

There is no reason why Marion County should not take its place among Ohio's leading milk production centers, the manager of the local concern says. Conditions in this locality are ideal from a dairy standpoint and all that is needed to bring about thorough development of the business is the willingness of farmers to take advantage of their opportunity.

Suitable Pasture

Blue grass pasture is the most suitable for dairy cattle grazing, and there is no better blue grass in the entire county than in this particular section of Ohio, Mr. Isaly states.

As the situation now stands, Marion County is below the general Ohio average despite the fact that there has been a gain in the production of dairy supplies, steady increase during the last 10 years or more. This county has ranked among the leaders, however, in percentage of increase during these 10 years and with this condition continuing there appears to be ample basis for the prediction that in time this locality will be one of the most important dairy centers of the state.

Milk Production

Although production of milk in the county is growing steadily, it is still considerably below the actual needs of the community. There is sufficient to supply the local retail demand for milk and other dairy articles but not enough to take care of the outside markets which the Isaly Co. and other local concerns aim to supply. There is particular need for much greater production of cream, Mr. Isaly states. "As far as butter is concerned, the world is our market," the local dairy manager says, indicating that there is scarcely any limit to the capacity of local plants for handling the materials which are used in the manufacture of butter.

Ohio Fourth

Ohio now ranks fourth among the milk producing states, having moved up several notches on the list during the last decade. This has been a result of farmers taking advantage of the fact that in many counties conditions are admirably suited to the dairy business and are making the most of their opportunities by stocking their places with high class cattle.

An idea of the extent of the business of the Isaly Co. is gained from figures showing that 250 Marion County farmers supply the company's plant with milk and 2,000 farmers in this county and those adjoining it sell cream to the various Isaly stations. There are now 28 of these stations operating in the territory covered by the local concern.

Company History

The business of the Isaly Dairy Co., which operates extensive plants in Youngstown and Mansfield in addition to the one in Marion, had its inception back in 1835, when a Swiss family arrived in America from its native land overseas and after a trying journey from New York to Pittsburgh, during which they walked most of the way, settled in Monroe County in the picturesque eastern Ohio hill section. The head of this family was a Swiss cheesemaker and naturally he began earning a livelihood for himself and family in Monroe County by starting out in the business in which he was so well trained.

William Isaly, founder of the Isaly Dairy Co. of Marion, was a grandson of this Swiss immigrant and following in the steps of his ancestors, he learned the trade of cheesemaking early in life and later organized a company for the manufacture of the product for which his native land is famed.

Goes to Mansfield

In the fall of 1902 William Isaly visited his parents, who had moved to Mansfield and while there he conceived the idea of starting a dairy farm. He accordingly purchased 100 acres west of Mansfield and in the spring of 1903 moved his family there, taking with him his cheesemaking equipment. He was soon disappointed in finding that because of peculiarities of the soil and pasture in Richland County good Swiss cheese could not be made there and as a consequence he turned his full attention to producing milk for the retail trade.

From this beginning was developed the Isaly Dairy Co., one of the largest concerns of its kind in Ohio. William Isaly died Aug. 21, 1923 and with his passing the dairy enterprise lost one of its pioneers, who for nearly a half century accomplished much in aiding the rapid development and advancement of the industry as a whole.

The work started by him, however, was left in exceptionally capable hands, for the four sons who continued carrying on the business know virtually everything there is to be known about the dairy business. They possess knowledge of its various details as a result of training and education that began from the earliest years of boyhood and this asset, combined with natural business ability, has enabled them to maintain the success and progress of the enterprise launched by their father.

At a recent fashionable wedding near Boston the bride wore a veil that was more than 100 years old and had been used by her great-grandmother and four generations of the family at weddings.

JERSEY BULLS ON ERIE TRAIN ALL SELECTED

Eighteen Animals Come from Best Stock on Ohio Farms, Claim

(BY H. E. DENNISON)
American Jersey Cattle Club Fieldman

In assembling the Jersey bulls for the "Erie Better Sire Special" an attempt has been made to select only bulls of outstanding merit in every respect. For obvious reasons it would be folly for any field organizer to permit bulls of any other quality to be taken on a train of this kind.

The 18 Jersey bulls on the train have been selected with the following qualities in mind:

Qualities Considered

First—Good type. This is recognized as an essential, not only for the reproductions that are pleasing to look at but also in producing animals that are to be large and profitable producers.

Second—Good breeding. Certain blood lines of every breed are known to represent more animals of combined type and production than others and it should always be the aim of a breeder to select a herd sire carrying as pleasing a combination of these two qualities as possible.

Third—Large production. The carrying capacity of a cow is measured by her ability to produce a large amount of milk and butter fat and do these two things consecutively. The ability to perform this feat is determined by the production of her ancestors, more especially her immediate ancestors. All however, for generations back play a part in this inheritance, but the mother and two grandmothers are recognized as the most influential.

That the Jersey Bulls on the "Erie Better Sire Special" have been selected with these qualifications in mind is shown by a few statements regarding them.

From Champion Cow

One bull from Homer B. Slagle of Poland, O., is from the highest producing cow of all breeds over 10 years old in Ohio for a 12-months period. This cow produced 13,695 pounds of milk and 67 pounds of butter fat in 10 months and qualified for the gold medal given by the American Jersey Cattle club for inheritance performances.

One bull from the Hartman Stock Farm, Columbus, is sired by a son of one of Ohio's famous old cows, Princess Emma of the Hartman Stock Farm, who produced 1,110 pounds of butter fat in a year.

Randall Anderson of West Austintown consigned a calf sired by Sophie's Premier and of a cow that produced as a three-year-old 626 pounds of butter fat. This calf has a sister that has produced 855 pounds of butter fat in a year.

There are three bulls from cows that have produced 500 pounds of butter fat or better in a year, one as a two-year-old and the other as a three-year-old.

The dams of the other bulls range from about 400 to 500 pounds of butter fat each. Most of these cows made these records as young cows and many of them in less than a year.

It is significant that every Jersey bull on the train with the exception of two are from dams with official records. The two without official records are now making the cow testing association records. Eleven of the eighteen bulls have dams whose producing records average an even 500 pounds of butter fat each year. Only two of these cows were mature at the time of making these records. The dams of five of the bulls made records that average 450 pounds of butter fat in the 10-months period.

Two of Full Age

Only two of these cows were of full age when the records were made. The other two bulls are from cows making cow testing association records at the present time.

There are always disadvantages in buying bulls that have passed inspection and that meet the requirements demands of these bulls. There is an added advantage in buying where there are large numbers to select from.

And there is the third advantage in finding that bulls of this kind would cost considerably more if bought direct from the breeder. The advertising to be gained from having an animal on a train of this kind has been an inducement to many breeders to put them on at a reduced rate. The traveling and shipping expenses to a buyer would add considerably to the original cost of a bull if he were bought direct from the breeder. These items are taken care of without cost to the buyer in this case.

Entrants

The following persons have consigned animals to the special:

Homer S. Slagle & Sons, Poland, O., one bull; R. E. Frederick, Poland, O., four bulls; Justin Gentis, Urbana, two bulls; Dr. Ernest Scott, Westerville, one bull; Hartman Stock Farm, Columbus, two bulls; Randall Anderson, West Austintown, one bull; H. J. Beardsley & Son, Canfield, one bull; Frank Bauer & Son, Fredericktown, one bull; B. I. Tuttle & Son, Springfield, two bulls; H. C. Reed, Canfield, two bulls, and Alta Meade Farm, Westerville, one bull. B. I. Tuttle of Springfield loaned a fine daughter of Tiddlewinks Raleigh for use as a demonstration cow on the train. She has just completed a 10-months record as a junior three-year-old of 500 pounds of butter fat. Her sire is the youngest silver medal bull and is now owned by the United States Department of Agriculture and in use in the department's herd at Bettsville, Md.

$466,850 TAX VALUE OF MARION COUNTY CATTLE

Records in Office of County Auditor Shows Invoice of Herds

Marion County's cattle, a majority of which are in the dairy class, are listed for taxation at a total valuation of $466,850, according to records in the office of County Auditor B. C. Decker. The number totals 13,040.

Both totals have dropped considerably since April, 1925, the previous appraisement when a total of 14,117 were reported at a value totaling $482,850. The previous year the number was 14,124 and the valuation, $473,270.

Although the Marion County Farm Bureau has a number of clubs and organizations in service to date no club has been organized for Shorthorn cattle.

Announcement has been made by members of the Marion County Fair Society that a Shorthorn Calf Club will be organized before the 1927 fair program. Detailed plans, however, have not been completed for the organization of this calf club.

The Marion National Mills is the Connecting Link Between Marion County Farmers and Marion City

The Erie Railroad and Ohio State University are to be congratulated on getting together and affording the dairy interests valuable data and information relative to the improvement of their herds. In these days when the farmer is meeting such severe resistance from weather conditions, it is indeed fortunate that dairying can be made to pay good dividends, providing he has the right kind of stock and takes pains to keep his herd in the best of condition.

Co-incident with milk production the item of the proper feeds is probably uppermost in any and every dairyman's mind. Fortunately abundant pasturage has been obtainable very late this year, making his feed problems in that respect of a minor nature no doubt but we must all recognize the fact that severe weather is to be expected most any time now, which means that the dairymen must rely more than ever on manufactured feeds aside from his roughage such as fodder or ensilage.

The dairyman today who makes a success of his business must necessarily study his needs and particularly should he be interested in those feeds that will pay him the largest return in milk production. The old haphazard method of feeding dairy stock for milk production is certainly a thing of the past and a milk producer must apply some science to the feeding of his herd for the best results.

Millers and feed manufacturers generally have made quite some study of protein feeds for the feeding not only of milch cows but all other livestock raised on the farm. Applying the present situation to milch cows solely, there are some very excellent feeds on the market designed solely to keep the herd in good condition and keep them producing the maximum amount of milk. Recognizing this fact, a short while ago we stocked a line of feeds included among which are two grades of dairy feed, one a 16 percent feed known as Yankee Dairy and the other 24 percent feed known as Eagle Dairy. We do not manufacture these feeds but selected them after quite some time and trouble to make sure that we were buying a product that was one of the very best. We have had some reports on these two feeds from local dairymen and the feeds mentioned seem to be satisfactory in every way as we are getting more calls for them right along. It is entirely possible that these feeds may be cheaper now than they will be later, in consequence of which it might be advisable for the dairymen who are interested in feeding their stock milk producing feeds to talk the matter of price over with us. In addition to the two dairy feeds just mentioned we have a supply of soft winter wheat bran containing 14.25 percent protein which is a feed that is peculiarly adapted to the feeding of milch cows. In mentioning cow feeds, we should not overlook corn and oats chop which we have for sale at all times, made of yellow corn and local No. 3 oats

In conclusion, we would urge every farmer interested in the production of milk to see the Exhibit that will be furnished by the Erie R. R. and Ohio State University as there can be no doubt but that valuable information will be disseminated by the men in charge of this train.

WORK ON CITY'S 24-INCH WATER MAIN FINISHED

New Line Being Flushed Preliminary To Connecting It with Distribution System

GIVES CITY TWO LINES

Many New Hydrants To Be Installed with Larger Fittings and Capacities

Work on the construction of a new main pipe line from the plant of the Marion Water Co. to the city, which has been in progress during the most of the summer and early fall, has been completed and today the line is being flushed preparatory to connecting it up with the community's water distribution system.

The connection will be made some time this week and will be accomplished without any perceptible effect upon the city water service, George H. Whysall, manager of the company, said today.

Laying of this line, which is part of the extensive program of improvements and extensions the company will make under the provisions of the franchise recently granted by City Council, will add greatly to the effectiveness of Marion's fire protection and provide an extremely valuable safeguard against accidents which might cripple the city's water service.

Two Main Lines

Two main force lines will serve the community when the new one is connected up, the old line, which has been in use during the 35 years that the local water plant has been in operation, still being in good condition. The new line, which was laid alongside the Harding Highway over the larger part of its course, is 6,100 feet in length and is at the junction of Silver-st and the Harding Highway, where connection with the city's distribution lines will be made this week.

While the new line is required under the provisions of the company's franchise, construction work was started before the franchise was granted, Manager Whysall said. Only a part of the company's improvement schedule has been completed. Next year the main pipe line will be continued up Silver-st and probably thence down Leader to connect with the Center-st line.

Many new hydrants of a larger type providing stronger pressure for fire protection service, are to replace the ones now in use. In all, the company will expend more than $175,000 in its improvement program.

In addition, a water softener system is to be installed, probably next year. This will cost about $140,000. After this improvement is installed, the lime in Marion's city water will be reduced ...Adequate Fire Protection at Last.

This week, for the first time in our history, Marion may be said to possess adequate fire protection. Back in the days before the construction of our waterworks system, when reliance was placed upon cisterns about the town, the Masonic block fire demonstrated that such protection against fire as we had was not dependable, for any blaze beyond the ordinary, for the burning of the Masonic block occasioned a water demand to which our cisterns were unequal. All within reach of the city's hose supply were pumped dry, and citizens were compelled to stand helpless as what was then considered a fine building was destroyed, its falling walls crushing buildings to both the east and west of it.

If the burning of the Grand opera-house in more recent years did not show the inadequacy of the waterworks system of that time, surely the two or three breaks in the sixteen-inch main between the city and the water plant, one of them during the great flood when we were without connection with the plant for a couple of days, made plain that Marion's fire protection was not what it should be and that it never would be what it should until we had at least two mains running from the city to the pumping station out along the Little Scioto river.

This week the newly-installed twenty-four-inch main was connected up and placed in operation. Not only does it give Marion a double connection with the pumping station, but it is also equipped with a number of gates and cross-overs, which will permit water service around breaks and make possible water service to Marion even though there were breaks in both mains, provided that the breaks in the two mains did not come between the same cross-overs.

Thus it is that Marion may at last be said to have the fire protection which her importance as an industrial, business and residential center demands. Thus it is that a situation which this paper has advocated and urged ever since the Grand opera-house fire at last obtains. Our citizenship is to be congratulated that the situation which now obtains is as it is, and the Water company is at the same time to be commended for going ahead with the improvement at a time when the entire waterworks situation was in a chaotic state, thus making it possible for Marion to have this protection the more speedily.

WORK TO START ON WATER PLANT EARLY IN 1927

First Steps To Provide Softener, Required Under Franchise, Taken

COST TO BE $140,000

Progress Announced at Dinner Given by George Whysall to City Officials

First steps preliminary to construction of Marion's city water softening plant which will be placed in operation next year were taken this week and definite plans for the improvement will be completed in the near future.

Engineers of the Marion Water Co. are now engaged in drafting plans and after they have completed their work the company will be ready for actual construction, which is expected to start early in 1927.

The water softening system, which is provided for in the franchise recently granted the water company, will cost approximately $140,000. It will reduce the degree of hardness in the city water to a point where it will be suitable for laundry use and all other domestic purposes.

Progress Announced

Announcement of progress made in preparations made for installation of the softening system was made Friday night by George H. Whysall, general manager of the Marion Water Co., to a group of city officials who were his guests at a 7 o'clock dinner at Hotel Harding.

The dinner was held in celebration of a recent completion of the water company's new main pipe line connecting the plant two miles west of Marion with the city's water distribution system. Construction of this improvement, which was also stipulated in the franchise provisions, gives the city two main force lines direct to the plant, and furnishes Marion the best and most dependable water service in its history.

As a result of the double force line equipment, consisting of the old line which has been in use since the plant began operating 35 years ago and the new one just completed, the water company is now prepared to provide service for approximately 20,000 con-

IMPORTANT NOTICE

We are attempting a new method of securing applications from persons desirous of being served with Water on streets where extensions of the water main are proposed. This new method has been determined upon after a conference between the Marion Water Company and City Officials.

First: Secure contract blanks from the City Clerk and sign them individually, also jointly sign the petition to City Council.

When a sufficient number of contracts have been signed along the proposed extension, the City Council will act upon the petition and pass a resolution, authorizing the Marion Water Company to lay down the pipes and set the fire hydrants.

THE TAPPING FEE, USUALLY TEN DOLLARS, MUST BE ATTACHED TO THE CONTRACT.

The above arrangement is not to prevent prospective water users from signing the contract and making their arrangements at the office of the company.

Out of respect to the twenty-seven million cows in the United States and Canada, and their product of 109 billion pounds of milk, produced every year, may we not offer the following toast?

To the Fountain from whence comes our milk supply,
Drink from it often and never forget,
That milk is the liquid without a regret.
And we also might add with profound resolution,
That Milk is the food without substitution.'

To Milk and Cream Producers of Marion County

We wish to take this opportunity to express our appreciation for your fine cooperation with this Company in the past.

While the production of milk and sweet cream is limited to the consumption of our local demand, cream production is not limited in any way, the world is our market.

Butter and butter fat is as staple as wheat or cotton and we have always attempted to give you a good cash market for your dairy products. So if you had a hundred pounds of milk or a thousand pounds, for sale, we have had a market for it.

Our success in the past leads us to believe that we have followed the right policy.

That dairying in this County has an opportunity to improve by better breeding of standard dairy strains is without question.

The value of the purebred sire in grading up herds has been demonstrated. But we also believe that we can serve the dairy farmer best by doing our share of properly marketing your product.

The Isaly Dairy Co.

The Story of Isaly Milk

We know that every mother and each customer is interested in knowing how the milk that they drink is handled.

Our milk is collected early each morning, from the farms surrounding Marion, by a fleet of trucks. All milk must be delivered to the dairy by 9:30 A. M.

In the days gone by we have maintained our own inspection of our dairy farms and producers, very little was said about equipment, and we have always insisted on the "3—C milk," Clean, Good and Covered, but for the past year and a half the City Milk Inspector has been gradually adding to this the need of modern equipment and better conditions on the dairy farm.

As the milk is delivered to our dairy it is inspected by a competent employe, who has had two courses in the O. S. U. for this purpose. All milk not coming up to standard is rejected, it is then weighed and samples taken out for butter fat tests and bacteria count.

Next the milk is pasteurized as a safeguard, it is elevated into bright tinned copper vat pasteurizers, where it is heated to 145 degrees Farenheit and held at that temperature for 30 minutes. Large recording thermometers are used, which records the temperature and time held, these records are turned over to the City Inspector on his regular visits to our plant.

Care is used at this point to standardize the milk as to butter fat, milk from different herds is agranged so as to enable us to put out a milk testing practically the same in butter fat or richness each day. This we find a great help in infant feeding.

The milk is now allowed to flow by gravity through a clarifier or filter, consisting of absorbent cotton discs which removes the finest sediment, and then it flows down over a large cooler, where it is cooled to a temperature of about 40 degrees. It is now ready for the bottle filler, which is a rotary machine of white enameled iron, which fills and caps 60 quart bottles per minute. The filler or the caps are never touched by human hands while the machine is operating.

The bottle milk is now ready for the refrigerators, where it is kept to a 40 degree temperature, until the milk is delivered to your door-step.

Let us not neglect the washing and sterilizing of the milk bottles. All our bottles are washed by a large high pressure bottle washer, which forces two strong jets of a hot alkali solution into the inverted bottles, then two hot soda solutions, next a hot fresh water rinse and then a steam bath, where a temperature of about 200 degrees is maintained, finally a cool, sterilized fresh water rinse, the bottles are then inspected and sent to the filler.

Every effort is made to see that all the bottles are perfectly washed and sterilized, should bottles come back to us that have had foreign product in them, such as vinegar, paint, oil or other matter, or where the milk has been allowed to stand in them until it corrodes, these bottles are immediately broken, should it be that one is missed and it goes to the filler, after its journey through the washer, it has been rendered perfectly sterile, but would have the ugly lines left in by the foreign product.

Our perfectly sterile bottles and modern equipment accounts largely for our remarkably low bacteria count. Last year our average count was 35,000, at no time had we a count of more than 40,000. The average bacteria count for Marion last year was 76,000, and we challenge any city of Ohio to show a better record.

Professor Drain of the Ohio State University in an address before the Medical Society last June, said that one of Marion's milk plants is to be complimented on having a State record of sending seven men employes to take one or more courses in Dairying. We feel proud of maintaining this interest and efficiency among our employees.

The Health of Our Employees

No employee is allowed to work at our plant unless he is in perfect health, and they are required to pass a medical examination and given a health certificate twice each year, by the city health physician.

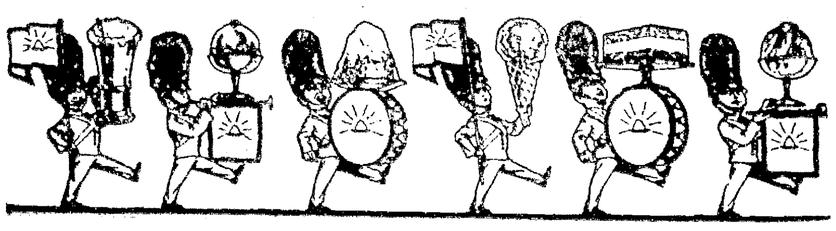
Our Ice Cream Is A Real Food



We have taken out the slack in ice cream manufacturing in Marion. You are able to purchase a full quart ice cream brick, a delightful combination of color and flavor, at 40c per brick in Marion, Ohio. The quality is equal or superior to what you would pay 60c or 70c for the same size brick in Cleveland or Columbus.

Our Butter Dept. Is the Pride of Our Dairy

Nearly one million pounds of Golden Spread Butter was churned in this churn this year. For which the cream producing farmer was paid over $300,000.00 for his butter fat. Our Golden Spread Creamery Butter is made from the finest cream, carefully handled and marketed.

Do you know that butter contains the growth producing vitamine more abundantly and in more convenient form than any other food. Professor Erf, O. S. U.—"There is no growth in a child without butter fat—Butter the producer of HEALTH, GROWTH and ENERGY."

Butter should be used as a spread, in cooking and in the preparation of various food dishes, wherever possible. For a liberal supply of the vitamin is better than the minimum on which growth is possible.
